WE THE PEOPLE ...

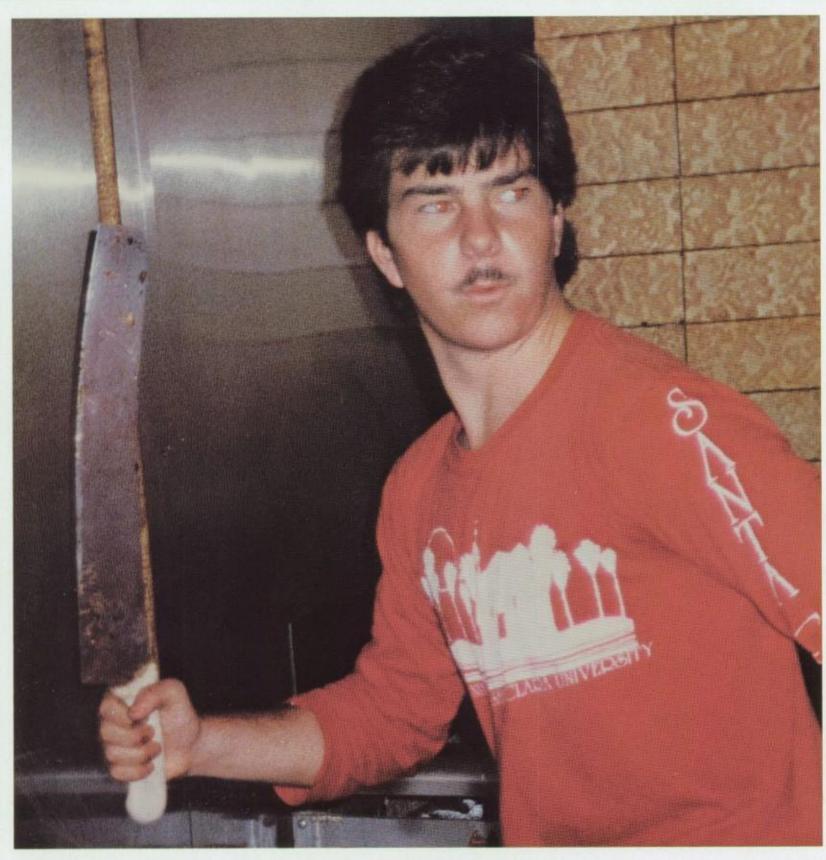

What pictures come to mind when you think about Homestead High School? A building complex modeled after a California State Penitentiary? A quad full of empty lunch bags and hungry seagulls; Jock Wall? But what is behind these images, what really shapes them, is the people. We, the people, students and faculty, are what gives this high school its personality and color. Everyone contributes something in their own way, and in many different areas. Each person makes a difference, and together we make history. This book is dedicated to we the people, and records the pockets of history that we have all shared in creating.

And there are many. Memories of the first day of school with reunions and acquaintances promising new friendships; expectations and fulfillments; groans as the first homework assignment is given, the first twenty-pound book handed out, the first pencil sharpened. Memories stacking up through the year, as events glide past: football games, spirit week, performances, dances, vacations, tests, defeats and triumphs. And then the last day, yearbooks and graduation, pens out of ink and books returned, goodbyes — happy and tearful. These are our memories; only we could have made them, and we couldn't have done it separately. We created this book, we the people, all of us.

Not alone — we make up this community, its times, its values, visions and ideals. Each of us paints its personality with light, made up of a great spectrum of people shaping the times. These times belong to all of us, for we're the ones who made them. This book, too, and the memories it holds, belongs to people — and that's who we are.

TOGETHER IN SPIRIT

Off to a Fresh Start

School in August? Like no way, dude! August is time for beach parties, swimming, surfing, sun tanning and bumming around the house, but not for education. Yet, August 29 marked the end of the infamous summer of 1984 and Mustangs filled the halls of Homestead once again.

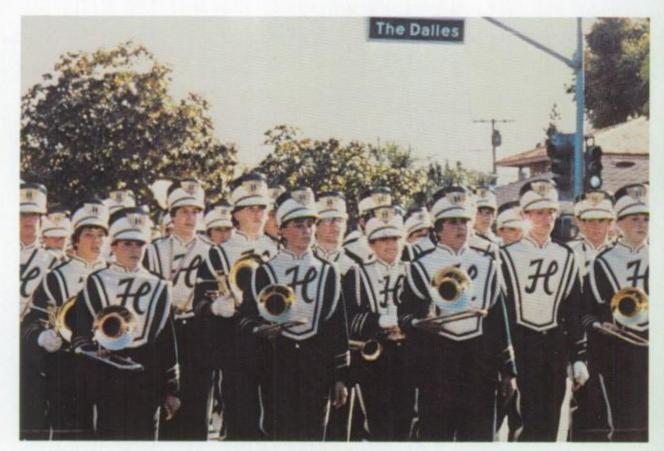

A change in the district calendar added five more days of torture to the already endless school year. Some students refused to go to class in the summer and weren't seen on campus until September. Others declared that holding school in August was against their religion.

In addition to the disruption to student's summer plans, extremely high temperatures tempted Mustangs to cut class and head for the holy land of Santa Cruz. Some beach-goers were discouraged due to the incorporation of the Saturday school policy. Yet, many found time in their busy schedules to finish up summer activities during the weekend or after school.

Thank goodness for campus events to keep the summer spirit and action going. The annual Welcome Dance brought students together for a night of good times and awesome rock and roll. Hot Licks provided the tunes and cool video equipment. Mustangs rocked all night and realized that it wasn't so bad to be back at the "old" Homestead after all!!

Spirit Soars

Colorful helium balloons, school pride and spirit flew high at Homestead's homecoming game Oct. 26 at the Diesner field.

After a week of class competition and preparation for the "big game", players and spectators alike were ready for a night to remember.

Varsity took the field at 7:30 and the excitement began. The Mustangs played a strong and virgorous game against the Monta Vista Matadors.

At halftime, the Mustang marching band ran onto the field along with the Equestriettes and the flag team. The show heightened the crowd's enthusiasm and lifted the team's spirits.

Most importantly, Homecoming Queen was announced . . . senior Dawn Andrews (escorted by Don Valenzuela). Princesses were Nancy Atchison (escorted by Steve Knight), Molly Pugh (escorted by Henry Perezalonso), Shana McClean (escorted by Rob Haber) and Barbara Gross (escorted by Jeff Taylor).

Homecoming princes were Mike Spiegel, Henry Perezalonso, Dave Lopes and Rob Haber. Steve Sullens was named Homecoming King earlier in the day at the rally.

Seniors and Parents

Over the years parents have played many different roles in the lives of all Homestead students. When we were younger they were a protection and a security for us. They were people that we turned to with our problems for answers because of their age and experience.

As we grew older our need to push away and become independent often separated us and we no longer turned to them as much for help. Our friends and the others around us helped to establish our standards of living. Some of us managed to stay close to our parents during this period of our lives and some went to such extremes to break away that they began to question whether their relationship with their parents was strong enough to survive at all.

Now in the final year of high school all of these aspects have taken on new dimensions. With graduation comes the end of a life based on the home and its security. Turning 18 legally "freed" us from our parents hold and made us both realize, that with the prospect of college life and living on our own comes the fact that this last year of school might also be the last year of living together and seeing each other on a daily basis. Parents and students in many cases developed a new and more rewarding form of relationship. Students once again felt that they could talk to their parents openly without sacrificing their own independence and parents were willing to share experiences. Both sides were discussed and in the end, for many, our parents became, instead of a security (or maybe even an enemy) friends, and this new friendship holds the potential to last a lifetime. Thanks, mom and dad.

Rush of Senior Year

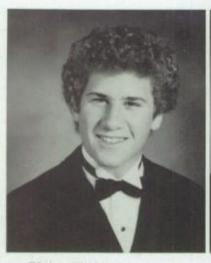

For most seniors their last year seems to go by in a blur as if the harder they try to hold on to the fun times the faster they go. Taking the S.A.T., for what seems like the thousandth time, The Senior Ball, Achievement Tests, being fitted for cap and gown, and filling out those important college applications are just part of the rush of the senior year which all finally come together on graduation day.

The feeling of being a senior and at the top of the school system is an overwhelming one and the long awaited rule over "jock wall' is enjoyed . The last Spirit Week of our high school lives was given as much energy and determination to win, as all the others combined.

The rush to create lasting memories with friends we would choose to never forget brings a busy social life and many sleepless weekends.

Mixed feelings of anticipation, fear, excitement, and sadness become more and more frequent the closer we come to the end of the year. Finally Yearbook signing and the Senior All Night Party close off the school years with tearful goodbyes, summer plans and promises to write to one another forever. One thing's for sure though, the memories that we have from our years at HHS, that now seem to have gone by so quickly will last a lifetime.

A tight hug or a kiss in the dark is something to remember a person by

Hop-a-long Halstead

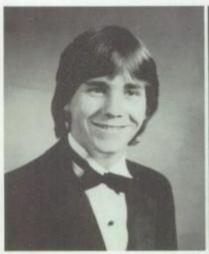

When Roger Halsted isn't Teaching a War and Peace class or flingin' transparencies around, he's acting as senior class advisor. Roger was in the quad during senior spirit day cheering everybody on. He came to school in the wee hours of the morning to let the seniors in to decorate the quad. In appreciation, some of the seniors designed a poster saying, "How could the seniors lose with Rodge as our sidekick" and had many seniors sign it.

Mr. Halsted believes that the theory of his success as the senior class advisor was that his students had good feelings about him and his class, and that warm feelings carried over to being class advisor. One senior said, "You respect him because his class is difficult and you learn so much. He wanted to help the seniors achieve their goals, so he gave the seniors moral support."

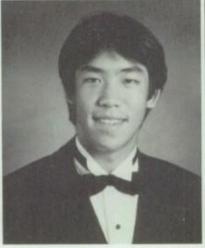

He wanted to let the seniors accomplish things on their own, not lead or take over the class. He did little things such as reminding seniors in his classes to go to class meetings. But it's the little things that count. So this is just to say, THANKS RODGE from the senior class of 1985.

Seniors and Jobs

As in years past, many of HHS's seniors have found themselves handling many activities, school work and often part-time jobs. One of the may reasons working is so popular is college application boards are looking more and more at our extra-curricular activities and expressing wishes for us also to be balancing part-time jobs in our schedules. Another of the reasons is, of course, a need for spending money and often money earned goes to help pay for a car or our college tuitions. With the money earned, also comes an independence well worth the hard work.

On the weekends local malls such as Valco and Sunnyvale Town Center are good places to find seniors either shopping or working, but most jobs aren't just weekend ones and require time on week nights. Local clothes stores, restaurants, and even gas stations are all common working places.

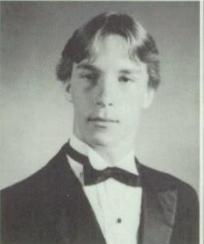

Although there are problems with a part-time job such as, less time to spend on school work or with family and friends. For many, the experience and responsibility, not to mention the money and the independence, make up for all the disadavantages.

HOPES, DREAMS: REALITIES

Upon re-entering this prison-like complex we call school for our third year, we received the coveted status of "junior". It seemed we were treated with more . . . respect! Yes, that was it: we had become upperclassmen and therefore were entitled to some kissing up from the younger classes.

"Ah . . . " we said as we resettled comfortably into our places at school, "this year'll be a breeze".

Our eyes were turned hopefully upward with the anticipation of turning sixteen and getting a car. Maybe Mom's station wagon or another comparable vehicle, or maybe our very own cruisemobile. We were delighted with the chance to make varsity, and the knowledge that as upperclassmen, waves of freshmen would part to let us through. Our hearts beat a little faster when we imagined the glitter of our very own junior prom!

Yet it seemed that junior year was full of unexpected surprises. When Spirit Week rolled around, our buoyant spirits were temporarily restrained after our heartfelt belief of junior supremacy was altered by the Seniors. While we checked the clock a little more frequently than the year before, the pressure was on to work towards our futures. We saw university gates looming on the horizon and rushed out to buy extra binder paper for our U.S. History reports. Suddenly we were bombarded with cryptic symbols: "PSAT . . . SAT . . . "What did it all mean? We consolled ourselves with our shiny dreams of the junior prom - which seemed to lose lustre after we discovered it was to be held in the gym. "Oh well, I couldn't get a date anyway." was all the juniors could muster on this occasion.

The optimistic class of '86 is looking ahead to the promise of a fantastic senior year.

10 o'clock. Homestead High British Lit. Ten more minutes 'till brunch.

Too many responsibilities in high school ... no time to watch T.V. anymore ... there's not even time to eat ...

- "... Let's play house I get the mom!"
 - "No way you got it last time!"
 "Nuh-uh!"
 - "Uh-huh!"
- "Tami's it! Tagged her fair 'n square!"
- "Hurry 'n get the kick-ball before some stupid girl gets it . . . "
- "Charlie kissed Lisa she told me!"
 "Oh come ON he's so gross!"
 - "Go ask her yourself!"
- "Dude! Let's play G.I. Joe later. I got a new set. It's bad!"

"Nah, I gotta go watch T.V. after school. Frito Bandito rules, dude."

"You're moded — Brady Bunch for-EVER ..."

... "C'mon dude, it's brunch. You wanna spend your entire life sleeping in this class?? What's with you? You look wasted."

"Nah, I'm just thinkin'. C'mon."

A Year in America

He's fun and interesting, but he's not exactly the All-American boy.

Sophomore Gilles Schwab has only lived in America since the start of the '84-'85 school year.

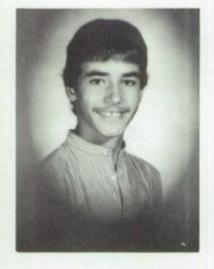

Gilles is originally from La Sagne, a small village in Switzerland.

"The people here are more socially orientated than in Switzerland."

With only two years of the English language, he has come to feel quite at home and enjoys attending Homestead.

Gilles is also quick to point out some differences between the U.S. and Switzerland. "In general, everything is larger here, not everybody knows everyone else."

He also misses the music from Switzerland and comments, "I don't like Heavy Metal and I'm tired of K.W.S.S."

INDIVIDUAL IS THE REFORMED

"It's a form of selfexpression, and it's been my way of life for about three years," said sophomore Gerry Burch of his punk band, The Reformed.

Along with sophomores Jim Black, and Dave Matias, these talented musicians are one of Homestead's few established bands.

Incentive for achievement and individuality is seen in this influential group.

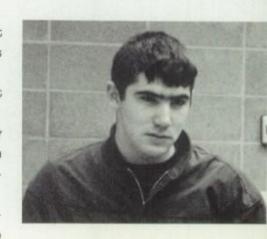

"Our music is like a late-night free speech message on T.V. 20; these days it's a good way to communicate ideas to a large amount of people." Gerry added.

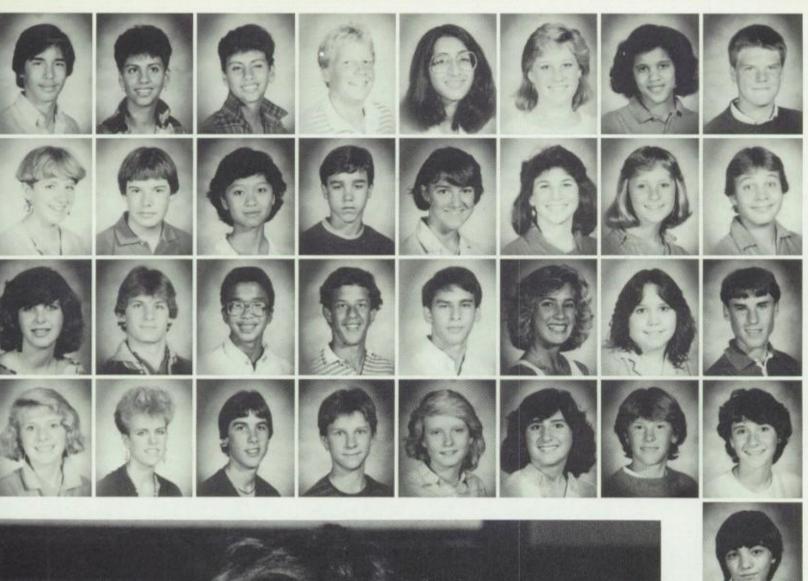

The Reformed have currently completedly studio tapes and live interviews, and received airplay on K.U.S.F.,

K.F.J.C., and K.P.F.A.

The meaning in their songs is important to them. Says Jim, "We write about social issues as opposed to politics, because we feel that affects our audience more directly."

IN THE BEGINNING

What would you expect your first day as a freshman? A big success or just the opposite? You wake up and look optimistic into the mirror expecting to find the new mature you, but instead you find the same old you, only with a new zit. Trying to ignore that, you get dressed in your most stylish clothes (always something to make you look older).

After Mom, dressed to the role in curlers and fuzzy pink bedroom slippers, kisses you farewell, it becomes evident that arriving at your first period class on time will be no ordinary feat. To dart and dodge the people and conquer the stairs is a talent that must be developed.

Brunch arrives, but you don't. You're lost in the hustle and bustle of people rushing to the quad. You can't find your friends, so you decide you might just as well start on your quest for your third period class.

Originally your plan was to walk into your classes with an air of style and ele gance and captivate all of your class mates, but after several entrances into the wrong classrooms you give up or that idea.

Lunch, this time you managed to find your friends, together you set out or your journey to what you hope will be the desolate wonderland of McDonalds Upon arrival, however, you find that 500 other hungry students have found your hideaway. Once you devour your cheese burger without onions, you return to the ominous brick building to complete your first day.

You survive through fifth and 6th period only to realize that this was only the first out of 176 days as a freshman

We the Teachers

After going through high school for four years, we either learned or slept through many teachers' classes.

Some of these classes we couldn't wait to get out of. It was a total waste of time and the teacher grinned like a Cheshire Cat whenever he got to assign Saturday school. There was always one teacher who had the strangest grading policy and wouldn't let you argue if you thought your grade was supposed to be higher.

Then we had to adjust to each teacher with his or her own little idiosyncrasies. Some teachers liked to throw chalk to let out their aggressions, while others flung transparencies or lost bulletins each morning. Then there were teachers who liked to take forever to complete roll or some who would tell you their life stories by the end of the semester. The teachers seemed to get especially agitated over those of us who repeatedly forgot to cover new text books.

How can we ever forget the lectures at the beginning of each semester about requirements and grading policies and the attendance policies. Then there were those quaint and timely interuptions for fire drills and earthquake drills. It didn't matter if you couldn't squeeze your 6'2" frame under the desk just so long as you complied with the instructions.

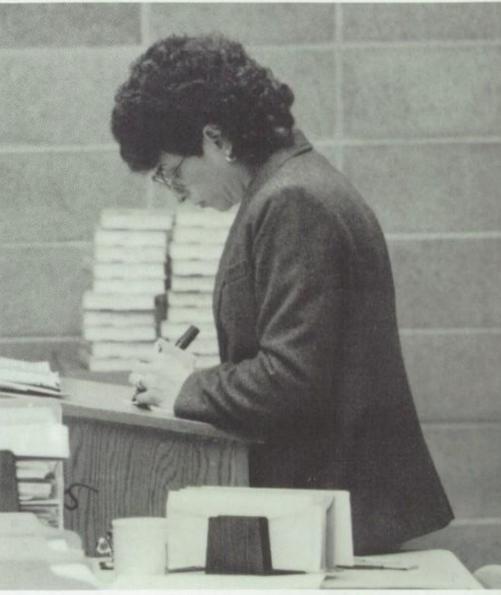

But a few rare teachers made a strong impression in our lives. They really cared about use and established lifelong friendships.

Good or bad, these teachers will always remain prominent in our memories of these high school years.

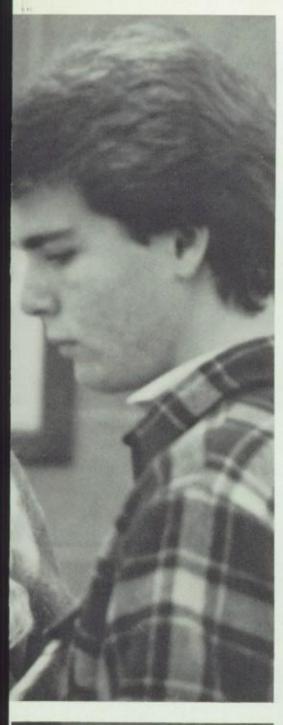

"Quick, somebody find and oil can!"

"Next time, I'll try crayon."

"So, have you been a good boy this year?"
"Prime time, here I come!"

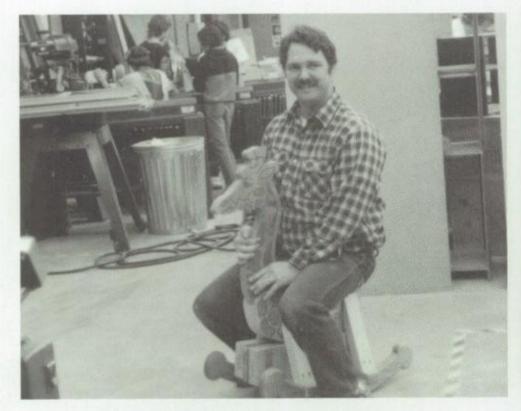

"Do you think it will leak?"

"They don't write any better than they speak."

"It looks like a cheesburger lunch."

Stress causes teacher to enter second childhood.

"Looks like the school's pizza."

"I told you; left, right, left, right!"

"Four score and seven years ago . . . "
"My hand is stuck!"

"I sure hope this computer dating program works."

Mathematics Anyone?

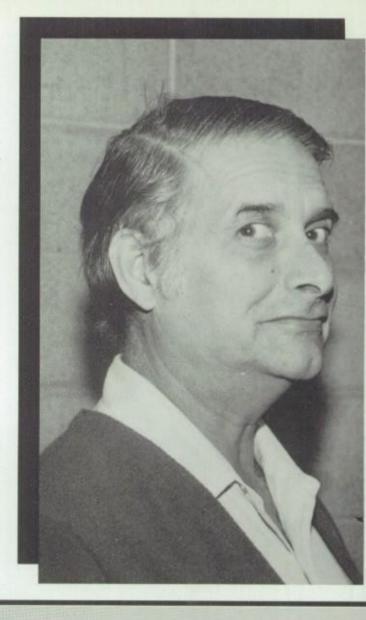

A student raises a hand, his mind a confused tangle of trigonometric thoughts. The teacher turns and his gaze falls on the befuddled student. Eyebrows raised, he listens to the question. Patiently, in a lighthearted Italian accent, he repeats, describes, analyzes the situation and unravels the problem.

What is it that makes students remember Mr. Renato Tripodi with fondness and recommend him so highly? Humor is a very important ingredient in his formula. He blends his warm, subtle humor with the math that everyone shudders about and makes them love it. Mr. Tripodi loves to teach because it is essentially communication and "communication is one of my things. The basic part of teaching is how effectively you communicate with the students." In this field he is a virtuoso. It's hard not to learn from Mr. Tripodi — if the student doesn't understand one approach, Mr. Tripodi uses another until he and the student reach a common path of communication.

According to Mr. Tripodi, one of the best aspects of teaching is feeling the mood of each class as it passes through Homestead, observing changes in goals and the overall personalities of various classes. And change has been a large part of his life. Immigration from Italy at age twenty six led to his acquisition of degrees in math and chemistry at UC Berkeley and a shift in careers which eventually brought him to teach at Homestead. Outside of school, Mr. Tripodi enjoys photography, "on and off," traveling "back to Europe", and reading "almost anything that comes into my hands."

A student placed in the hands of Mr. Tripodi will experience the art of teaching at its finest. Through a well prepared lesson delivered in an endearing Italian accent, this teacher leaves a permanent mark in the halls of Homestead and in the minds of his students.

Spanish Powerhouse

One first sees Ms. Ybarra at about eight in the morning, scampering down the corridor to her first period Spanish class. A full cup of coffee in her hand, she weaves through the throng of people with the legendary "con permiso, con permiso!"

This no-nonsense teacher, chair of the Spanish department since her arrival four years ago, is a dedicated and exciting language teacher. Through her lessons you will learn spanish grammer, vocabulary, idioms, and culture. In short, you will really live the spanish language.

Ms. Ybarra has been a great asset to the foreign language department, encouraging her classes and other students to participate in extra-curricular Spanish activities and contests. She hopes in the near future to have more Homestead students win some foreign language awards and get more students interested in continuing their foreign language education.

Ms. Ybarra is originally from El Paso, Texas. She grew up speaking both Spanish and English. Besides Spanish, she has also studied French and Chinese. She arrived at Homestead just four years ago from Cupertino High School.

She has attended the University of Berkeley, Claremont, and Santa Clara.

Dick's Travel Gallery

Traveling is Dick Fulcher's passion. World Civ. teacher, Mr. Fulcher has taught in Homestead since 1962.

During this time, Mr. Fulcher and his wife have set up a travel agency called Travel Gallery.

This all got started when Santa Clara college asked Mr. Fulcher to take a group of teachers to Austria and teach them about Austrian culture. When they asked him to do this a second year, he refused because he thought the trip was too expensive. Mr. Fulcher had already taken several trips to Europe and knew the prices so they asked him to arrange the next trip.

Now, the Travel Gallery can arrange trips within the country, internationally, and several different kinds of cruises.

On June 20, Mr. Fulcher plans to take a group of adults to China.

When he retires he plans to work on the travel agency "on a regular full time basis."

Through his travels, Mr. Fulcher thinks that he has learned so much and he can help his students conceptualize different cultures. He makes civilizations come "very much alive" through slides and first hand discussions.

Mr. Fulcher's other interests include his family life, reading, and politics. He has been the president in the teachers union and is interested in fighting for teachers' rights. He is presently on the School Site Council.

When asked about what he would like his students to remember about him, he replied, "I hope to have caused them to think and question why they believe in something." He hopes to have challenged their values and ideas and helped them to internalize the process of problem solving.

Dick Fulcher, who was born in Portland, Oregon, attended the University of Washington. Combining his personal experiences and teaching abilities, Mr. Fulcher makes history come alive.

SHOW TIME!

"'Go into teaching, it's secure,' they told me", said English-Drama teacher Shareen Clarke as she rolled her eyes.

After having been fired and rehired twice at Sunnyvale High School and once at Homestead, she dosen't agree. However, she revealed that she loved the profession and said she could see herself teaching the rest of her life, providing the tedious extras such as non-public support and lack of funding don't continue to worsen.

A bay area girl, Clarke attended high school at Fremont and College at San Jose State where she earned a Bachelor's Degree in Drama and Speech and a Masters Degree in Drama.

Hoping for a career in the theater, it wasn't until the summer of 1966 that she realized she enjoyed directing more.

"I wasn't willing to give up what you have to give up to make it," she admitted, although at the time of that decision, she had no intentions of a family life. Clarke is now married and has two boys.

After receiving her teaching credential in 1967, Clarke was a substitute teacher, then landed a job teaching at a high school in Taft, C.A. During that time, she was also working with a public television station in L.A. and a community theater in Bakersfield.

Sunnyvale High School was her next gold mine, and she enjoyed working there as a Drama/English teacher for 10 years until the closure of S. H.S. in 1981.

Clarke was born in Dearborn, Michigan. She is a member of the American Theater Association and studied acting with Lurene Tuttle and Peter Donat of the American Conservatory Theater. Her hobbies include horseback riding, sewing, tennis, swimming, and dancing.

She is now enjoying Homestead; how long she'll be here is unknown, but we wish her luck in the future.

Frogs In Space

Frogs, frogs, and more frogs.

Physiology teacher, John Freitas' room and office is covered with his extensive frog collection.

"I think that started when I was teaching biology, "Freitas explained. "Kids started giving me things with frogs on them."

Freitas has continued the collection and it has outgrown his room and office. He has more frogs at home.

Freitas' interests go beyond school. Last year he reached for the stars and applied to be one of the teachers to go up in the space shuttle. He later withdrew his application because of the 18 month commitment. "It's too long to be away from my family," he said.

Family is something very important to Mr. Freitas because of his daughter. He and his wife adopted a baby girl who was both blind and deaf at birth. After six eye operations and contact lenses, she can see but she goes to a special school because of her hearing impairment.

Freitas said that they are trying to help her intergrate with society but stated that it's very hard to function in a hearing world when your are deaf.

Besides his frogs, Mr. Freitas collects something else, exotic cars.

He has had a grand touring car called a Jensen Intercepter, a Ferrari, a Mazzerati, and a '68 Mustang.

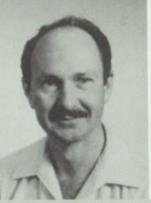

Mr. Freitas said, with a grin, that he no longer has the Ferrari because his brother made him sell it to him.

After twenty one years of teaching at Homestead, Mr. Freitas has accumulated many amusing ancedotes. If you are curious, ask him to tell you about the time that his frog collection got kidnapped.

To Close or Not to Close

"Boy, the school board has been pretty busy this year."

"It sure has. In the beginning of the year they had a long drawn out battle with the teachers about their contract."

"Yeah, they added five days to the school year and tried to add ten minutes to the teaching time, but the teachers wouldn't go for it since they weren't going to get payed."

"They never did decide what to do about those ten minutes did they?"

"No, they didn't."

"Then they went through the paces of trying to close a high school. They even had hearings to decide which school to close."

"I can't believe they backed out of it at the last minute. How are they going to possibly going to solve the deficit problem if they only sell Blaney?"

"Well, they said they wouldn't cut any programs, but I guess time will tell."

"They'll reconsider it next September and Mrs. Lanterman has already proposed a plan to close all the high school except Fremont by the year 2010."

"Nobody would agree to it."

"If the parents don't pass a tax bill, they'll have to agree."

"The board hasn't done anything about the boundaries either."

"They probably won't."

"The Epitaph has really gone after the board in the editorial section this year."

"Yeah, they did."

"The seniors are lucky because they don't have to worry about it."

"That's not true. Everybody cares if they won't have a Home-coming game to come back to if their school is closed."

"We'll just have to wait and see."

A Fond Farewell

This year, several staff members are retiring and we would like to honor them.

Kathy Smith left the math department after 21 years of devoted teaching. She was voted Favorite Teacher twice by seniors and was well loved by both the students and the faculty. Her charisma and sense of humor will be missed by many.

Mrs. Smith was born in Saint Helena, California. She received her BA in mathematics in 1960 from San Jose State and obtained her General Secondary life credential in 1961.

Pat Stiner has worked at Homestead for the past seventeen and a-half years as the principal's secretary.

Mrs. Stiner first worked in the district as a secretary in the counseling office at Cupertino High School for Warren Bryld when he was head counselor. She transferred to Homestead with Bryld in 1967 when he became principal.

She has provided leadership for secretarial staff and has been extremely helpful over the years.

She also has built up good public relations to answer questions on the phone from parents and general questions from the staff.

After retirement, Mrs. Stiner plans to get back into golfing and do more traveling.

Lillian Ness is also retiring this year, after working at Homestead for eighteen years as a library technician.

Mrs. Ness feels that she has learned a lot working here and she has also developed many personal relationships with her student aids.

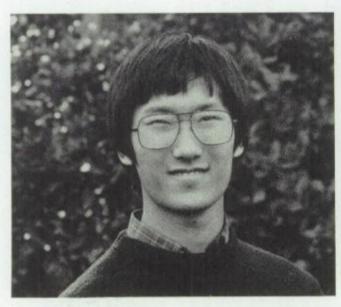

After retirement she wants to travel to Austria and play golf again.

We wish all of them the best of luck and a bright future.

ACADEMICS

Homestead is known for its academics so they say. But what makes a school strong academically? Some say it's the students or the home environment. Most important of all though are the teachers. The teachers who care and inspire us to do our best. They make sure we are aware of all our opportunities.

Teachers can make all the difference between an exciting class or a boring class. They often influence a student's interest in the subject that they teach. Sometimes a teacher may influence our whole decision about our future occupations.

Homestead is a school of high achievers. Students win awards in all aspects of academic endever, including the arts. Though some of us may not be high achievers in academics, we succeed in other ways, such as through sports or student government. All in all, we are a school that prides itself in success, in whatever field it may be in.

Let's look to the future and shoot for the stars.

The Homestead marching band won second place in parade marching and third place in the field show at the Cupertino Tournament of Bands.

- VARSITY FOOTBALL -

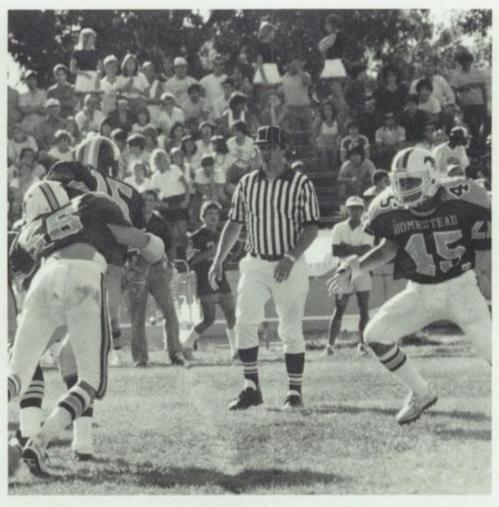

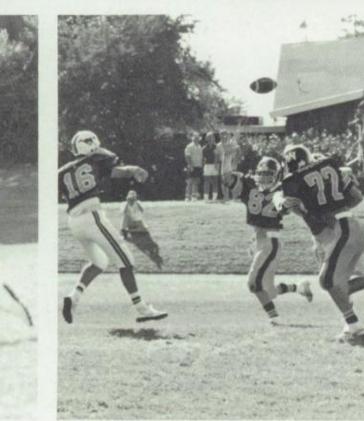

FOOTBALL FINISHES LAST

Although crippled by lack of size and academic eligibility requirements, this year's varsity football squad was able to somewhat overshadow their losing season with a stunning upset over CCS-ranked Lynbrook.

A tough defense carried the Mustangs to a 6-0 victory, their only win in a 1-9 season. Seniors Frank Smith, Steve Sullens, Dave Williams, and Joe Burth were noted for their outstanding defensive play during the season.

Offensively, Sullens and Marcy showed strong performances and were league leaders. Returning juniors Daryl Johnson and Scott Erickson will add experience to next year's young team.

All-League honors went to Sullens, Marcy, Eric Volckaert, and Dave Williams.

- JV FOOTBALL

JV FINISHES 1-9 ALSO

JV football excelled in their play this year, but inexperience and inability to hold on to a lead resulted in a disappointing 1-9 season for them.

The offensive and defensive lines showed outstanding play and sophomores James Triantafyllou and Ty Rudell, and freshmen Lance Goodman, Jim-Jim Grimes, and Tim Fussel enabled the team to keep the score close in most games. But a lone win over Fremont was the only victory the squad could muster.

Next year Triantafyllou and Rudell will add their skills to the varsity team.

JV TENNIS -

NETTER'S FUTURE GREAT

Led by freshman M.V.P. Katie Weissenborn, the 9-5 JV tennis team finished third in the conference. Weissenborn, who posted an 11-1 individual league record, qualified for the DAL finals. The JV Mustangs named junior Marianna Niu its most inspirational player.

Homestead started off quickly with a 4-0 record with four straight shutouts and showed great promise. The team then leveled off winning five of their last

Two of the teams five losses came against Saratoga, who handily beat the Mustangs 7-0 and 5-2. Homestead also lost to St. Francis, Mountain View, and Los Altos.

If the JV team continues to improve, the varsity team will improve also.

NETTERS GET RESPECT

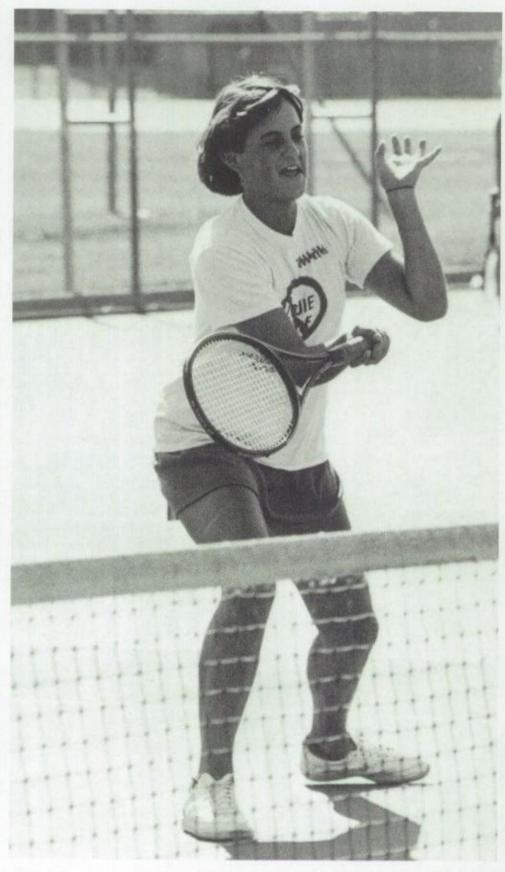

Colleen Harper, varsity girls' tennis coach, called this year's team, "the best in the last six years," after finishing with a terrific 12-4 record overall and a 8-4 conference record. Despite their outstanding season, Homestead only finished third in the DAL. Excluding the Mustangs two losses each to St. Francis and Saratoga, Homestead would have been undefeated.

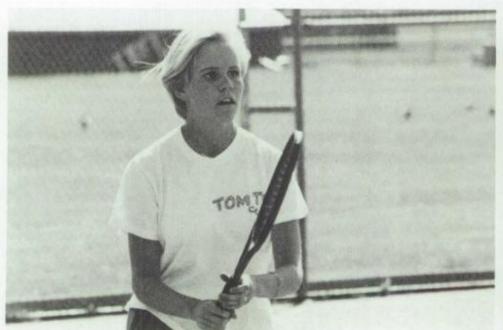

Number one seed Lisa Bauer, junior, posted an individual 10-5 record, which was good enough for the M.V.P. award. Senior Maribeth Bray was the most inspirational player for the second consecutive year.

The success of the girls' varsity tennis team was shown by the fact that no one on the team had an individual record below .500.

POLO PLUNGES UNDER

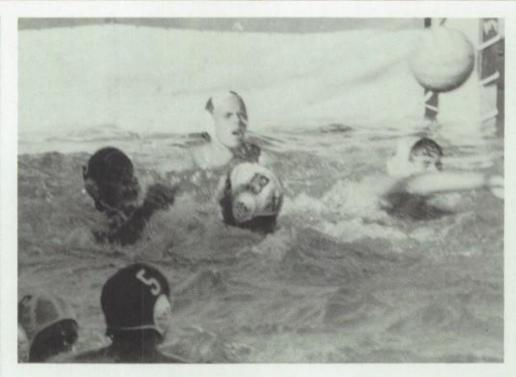

Although pre-season hopes were high, the varsity water polo team plunged to a 1-13 record in league, tournament, and DAL action, beating only Wilcox High.

Many games were close in score, but inexperience and lack of summer play prevailed over strong performances by seniors Mike Hiddleson and Mike Fischer and junior Daryl Wells.

Expected to return next year are juniors Daryl Wells, George Su, Mike Jones and Scott Toppel.

JV WATER POLO -

Halted by inexperience, the young JV water polo team earned a 2-6 record, beating Monta Vista and Cupertino in league play. Coach Sheldon Harmatz helped the team keep their heads above water.

Returning JV players should give the team more depth next year. Strong sophomore performers Steve Hiddleson, John Richards, Chris Harper and Tom Johnson will add strength to next years varsity squad.

GIRLS SWIM TO SUCCESS

The varsity swimming and diving team finished fifth out of 42 in the CCS finals. "They did an outstanding job in an extremely competitive league," said coach Donna Chavez. She credited the strength of the team to the return of strong swimmers and the support of new members.

Homestead sent nine team members to CCS. Standouts at the meet included freshman Jill Campbell, who dove to a first-place finish and an undefeated season, and junior Mary Doolittle, who earned two secondplace finishes, a third, and a first, in the 500 M freestyle.

The JV team finished fifth, but freshman Julie Bain won the DAL diving crown.

INJURIES BRING DOWNFALL

The JV team also ended the season fourth in league play. Their record stood at 2-5 and one tie. Inexperience and injuries brought misfortune to the team.

On a brighter note, several individuals were acknowledged by the league for outstanding performances. Sophomore Jamie Littleton and sophomore Althea Baker were honorable mentions. Senior Susie Turner was voted most inspirational.

VARSITY FIELD HOCKEY -

PLAGUED WITH INJURIES

Although the team did not have the most successful season, there were some outstanding players.

The team had a record of 1-6 and one tie. The team was young with only three returning players.

Awards were given to team members at a banquet. Senior Chris Ryan was named the most valuable player. She also was honored by being named the all league player by district coaches. Sophomore Mona Staupe was noted most inspirational and received an honorable by the coaches in the league. Sophomore Nichole Salazar and Junior Lisa Gonzalez also received honorable mention.

SPIRIT CARRIES TEAM

The JV volleyball team wrapped up their season with a 6-6 record, placing themselves fourth in the league. They stole a match from league champion Fremont and defeated Saratoga at the DAL tournament.

Freshman talent, strong team spirit, and a well liked coach, Sheila Burt, benefitted the team. It consisted of one junior, five sophomores, and eight freshmen (only two of which were returning players). The coach hopes to keep the spirit of the team and install a winning program at Homestead.

Junior Andrea Kuechle, sophomore Venecia Abe, and freshman Sandy Callahan earned All-League recognition. Venecia was named to the first team along with receiving Most Inspirational and Most Valuable Player. Sandy was awarded Most Improved Player and second team All-League.

VARSITY VOLLEYBALL -

3-9 SEASON — NOT BAD

Varsity volleyball looks upon this year as an enlightening experience, in hopes of a better season next year. After the 3-9 season, coach Roger Edwards admitted that he had expected the team to do better, but that the team felt the season was acceptable anyhow.

The team was made up of six returning seniors, two juniors, and four sophomores. Edwards spoke of next year as having promising aspects, due to the six returning players, and the return of setters with varsity experience.

Most Improved Player Award went to sophomore Susie Kirk. Senior Dawn Andrews was awarded the Most Inspirational Player and All-League honorable mention. Senior Lynette Brink made All-League second team and Heather McPherson achieved All-League honorable mention. She was the only sophomore to make an All-League team.

RUNNERS — GREAT SEASON

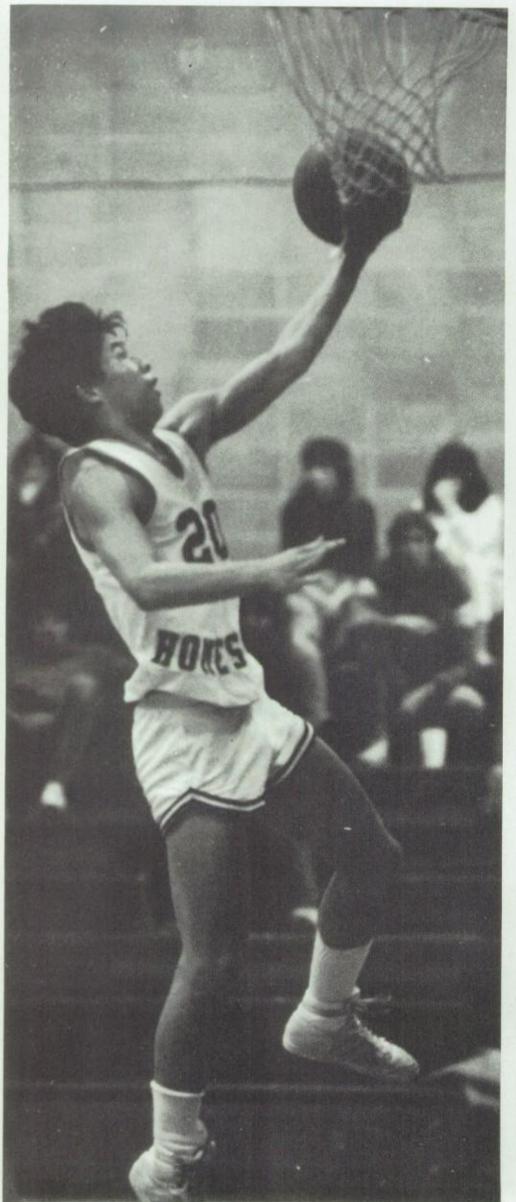

Boys' varsity runners had an incredible year, coming in first at the DAL meet, third at regionals, and fourth at CCS. Senior Chris Richards was the backbone of the team, placing first, seventh, and twelth in the meets, respectively.

The varsity girls team did well also. They finished fourth in DAL's and twelth overall. And the boys' frosh-soph team showed definite potential by finishing fourth in the league while there was not a girls' team due to lack of participation.

MUSTANGS PLACE THIRD

The Mustangs ended their season with a 4-6 league record and a fourth place finish in the DAL. Highlights for the season included a road trip to the San Luis Obispo Tournament in which they played some of the best high school teams in the state and a slam dunk by Ricky Miller against rival Fremont.

The team was lead by senior Rob Haber, who was among the CCS scoring leaders. He also earned a first team All-League honor and an honorable mention award on the All-Peninsula squad. Junior center Chris Jackson was also an All-Leaguer, selected as honorable mention. Seniors Miller, Steve Sullens, Dave Suzuki, Mitch Cepeda, Eric Holder also contributed to the allaround team effort. Jackson, James Ushiba, and Mike Hannigan should lead the team next year with their varsity experience.

24 WINS FOR DAL CHAMPS

Peninsula Coach of the Year Ernie Dossa directed the most successful girls' basketball team in Homestead athletics history. Ending with an incredible record of 24-3, they made it all the way to the CCS Final Four. They lost to Wilcox in a heart-breaking come-frombehind loss after beating Independence 46-34 a week earlier.

The team was led by 6-2 junior center Julie Szukalski who constantly scored in double figures and led the team in rebounds. Her season highlights included a 41-point effort against St. Francis, a Most Valuable Player award in the DAL, and selection to the first team All-Peninsula squad.

Junior Linda Hoffman, the point guard, sparked the offense and earned first team All-League in the DAL and honorable mention on the All-Peninsula Team. Kathy Blair earned second team and Laurie Shuken got honorable mention.

- VARSITY BOYS SOCCER

TALENT, AMBITION, SUCCESS

The varsity team finished 2nd place in league and went on to play Saratoga in the DAAL playoff game. Homestead won by a score of 4-0, playing one of the best games of the year. At CCS the team was eliminated in the first round. A season highlight was the league win over Lynbrook. Lynbrook's only losses of the year were to Homestead and at the CCS playoffs.

The varsity team was blessed with twenty-two players who have a lot of talent, ambition and love for the game of soccer. There were many standouts this year. Doug Dupin was the M.V.P., he was selected 1st team allleague, he was elected 1st team all-peninsula, and he was selected 1st team all-CCS. Other all-league players were: Gerry Henne, Paul Korn, Kevin McClellan, Dave Lopes, and Kurt Hyatt. The team chose Mike Hiddleson as Scholar Athelete, Marty Dare as Most Improved Player, and Kurt Hyatt as Most Inspirational Player.

JV BOYS SOCCER -

JV KICKS OPPONENTS

The boys' JV soccer team had a 14-4-1 season this year including a 7-3 second place finish in the tough De Anza league. A penalty kick loss to Cupertino early in the league season turned out to cost the team a share of the championship. Those associated with Homestead soccer said this was the best IV team in at least ten years. The team was led by Freshman Center Half Jon True who was the high scorer and Sophomore Striker and Co-Captain Jeff Burns and Sophomore Center Fullback Jeff Baicher. The solid defense was anchored by Sophomore Co-Captain Sweeper Mark Weiler and Sophomore Fullbacks Mike Cryan, Keith Willsey and Matt Vanghan. Highlights of the season included shut out victories over highly touted Bellermine and Gunderson. Homestead's JV had its first win over Lynbrook in several years. Nine shutouts were recorded by starting goalie Sophomore Jeff Machle and backup Freshman goalie Ray Groenwald.

- VARSITY GIRLS SOCCER

HEALTH HINDERS SEASON

1985 was going to be a rebuilding year for the Mustang varsity. We had 11 new players, including an entirely new midfield, on our 17 girl roster. However, after a good preseason and a 2-0 win over St. Francis in our third league game, it became apparent that Homestead would be a force to be reckoned with in the best league in the CCS - the tough DAL. Then disaster struck in forms of flu, colds, and injuries. Never again, until the last game of the season, did the Mustangs play with a full roster. The Mustangs never gave up, and won, the season's series with Saratoga, St. Francis, and Fremont. They lost three out of four matches by one goal with co-champions Monta Vista and Lynbrook. Since the team will lose only three seniors we should have a great 1986 season!

JV. GIRLS SOCCER -

SACRIFICE PROVES WORTHWHILE

It all started in early November. All of us being soccer enthusiasts we waited with quiet anticipation for the season to get underway. The coach, Scott Harrinton guided us through the hardest part of the season. Then all of a sudden the games became more productive and scoring became alot easier. Although practice mainly consisted of trying to keep warm, we also did lots of running, shooting, and passing. During the games each player sacrificed their bodies for the good of the team. Bumps and bruises became a normal part of our lives. Being a J.V. team our main focus was to have fun. We achieved this goal and far beyond. The team was a great group of girls whose school spirit was present on and off the soccer field. It was a great season.

- VARSITY WRESTLING

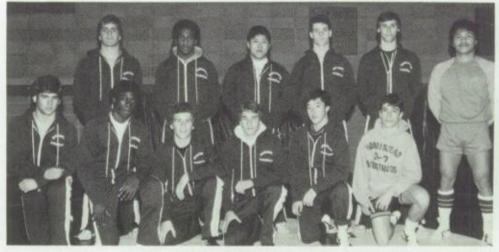

WRESTLING PINS FREMONT

This season began with another new coach who inherited nine new seniors. Among the standouts was senior Frank Smith who was the returning Central Coast Section (C.C.S.) champion at 154 lbs. Smith returned as League Champion. Another standout was senior Russ Heitkam who took third in League and qualified for the C.C.S. tournament. Others that were impressive were seniors Craig McTiernan, Blaine Flickner, Scott Moskalik, and Mike Fischer.

The team finished with a 2-4 league record and a fourth place in DAL. The highlight dual meet of the year was a 36-35 win over arch rival Fremont.

JV WRESTLING -

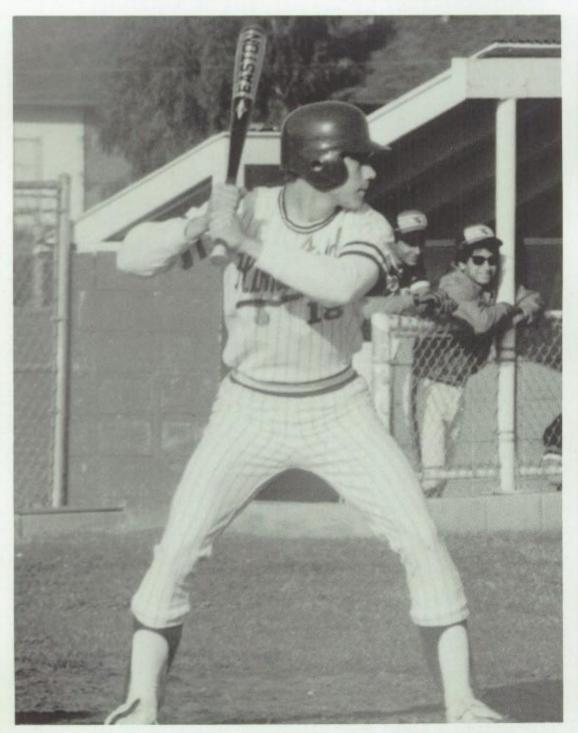

TEAM TAKES THIRD

The JV team had a very successful season, especially when you consider that all of them were first year wrestlers. The most impressive were team captains Jason Inouye and Steve Numoto. At league finals sophomore Inouve placed third while junior Numoto placed fourth and freshman Kyle Kurtz also placed fourth. The IV's also had ten freshmen. Among the most impressive were Jermaine Wyche, Brian Parker, Dan Farley, and Ken Mclaughlin. Others who did well were sophomores Rob Olson, Hadrian Harper, Jason McCash, and Junior Anthony Su.

The highlight of the year was that the team placed a third in league with a 3-3 record; losing by only five points to St. Francis. Their overall record was an impressive 4-3.

- VARSITY BASEBALL -

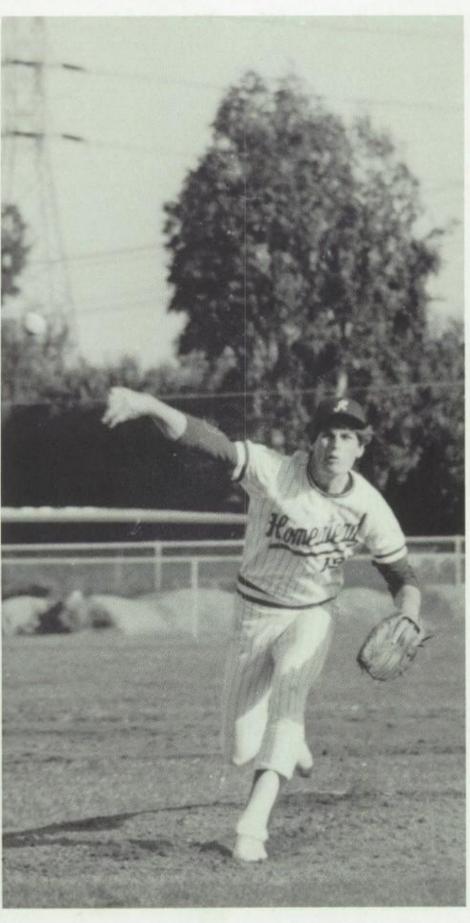

MUSTANGS LEAGUE FAVORITE

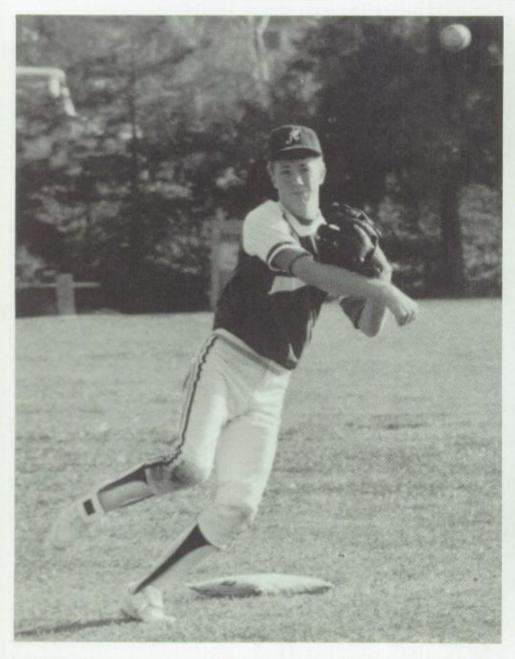

The outlook for this year's varsity baseball team is very bright. Pre-season speculation indicates that the Mustangs are the team to beat.

Seniors Chris Vodanovich and Mike Hiddleson are the co-captains. Vodanovich has been recognized as one of the valley's premier shortstops. Last year he had a brilliant .478 batting average. Hiddleson will be playing both third base and outfield and hit in the clean-up spot.

The starting pitchers are juniors Mike Woodward and Scott Erickson while relief help will come mainly from Vodanovich, Mike Beard, and Gary Furamoto. Seniors Vodanovich, Hiddleson, Gary Crock, Steve Sullens, and Paul Yasuda should provide the team with fine hitting, while defensively the team is led by Vodanovich, Crock at second base, Todd Reese at first, and Yasuda and Sullens in the outfield.

JV BASEBALL -

JV'S SHOULD DO WELL

The JV Baseball team looks sharp, as the Pegasus goes to press. Fourth year coach Bernie Moncallo admits that this is a rebuilding year due to the loss of many Seniors and Juniors to the Varsity squad.

The team is led by juniors Tim Farrel (shortstop and pitcher), George Su (outfield), Dan Halden (first base and outfield), and Craig McFarland (first base).

The pitching staff appears to be the team's strong point and consists of freshmen Lance Goodman, Craig Haliwell, Kevin Freeland, and juniors Farrell, Scott Michels, and Todd Irby.

There are many experienced players returning from last year who should greatly aid the young team: Farrell, Halden, Su, McFarland, Michels, Irby, John Ruby, Mike Cryan, Scott Pahler, and lead-off hitter Scott Bull.

VARSITY — APPEARS STRONG

As the Pegasus goes to print, the varsity and JV squads have not yet been split apart into two teams. Of the players who are definitely on varsity, one expects them to do well — at least better than they have done in the past couple of years.

First year coach Dan Piro, last year's JV coach at Mountain View, believes that this year the team is extremely young. But being the optimist that he is, Piro thinks the team has a good shot at beating favorite Monta Vista.

Juniors Stacy Kurisu and Patricia Porter are the pitchers, Kurisu will play second base when Porter pitches. The outfield consists of Mary Bray, Laurie Shuken, and Ralene Matthias, while the infielders are Brenda Quanz at third, Linda Hoffman at shortstop, Abbie Halden at second, Renee Nichols at first, and Megan Greene at catcher. Stephanie Stoller and Larisa Bailey are strong hitters.

- BOY'S TENNIS

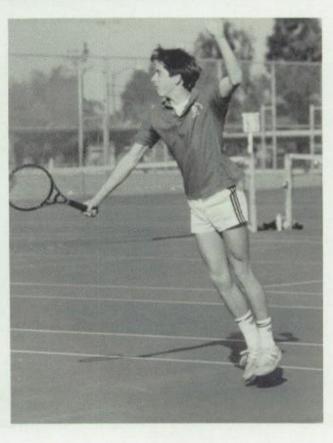

SEASON LOOKS BRIGHT

Despite a loss to last year's CCS champion Los Altos in a practice match boys' tennis is looking good this year, according to firstyear coach Bill Urhammer.

"I feel the team this year has loads of potential. Depending on how much the players dedicate themselves to achieving the goals they choose, we'll do just as well as last year or probably better," Urhammer said.

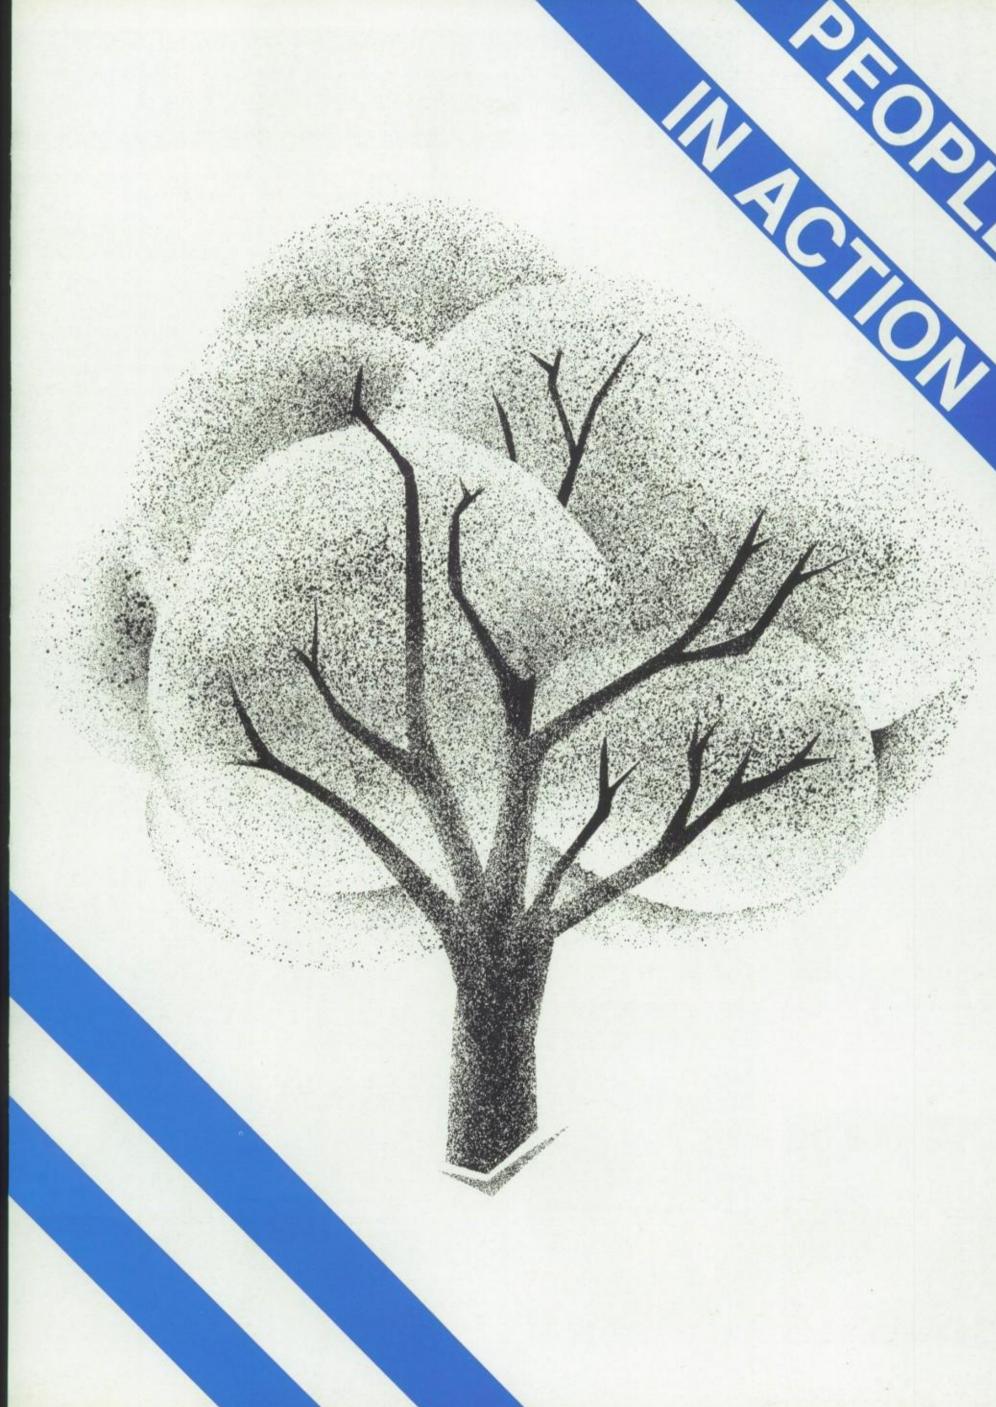

Number one singles player Mike Rintala, junior, is also optimistic for the team this year. "I think we're going to do pretty well. We have a strong team," he said.

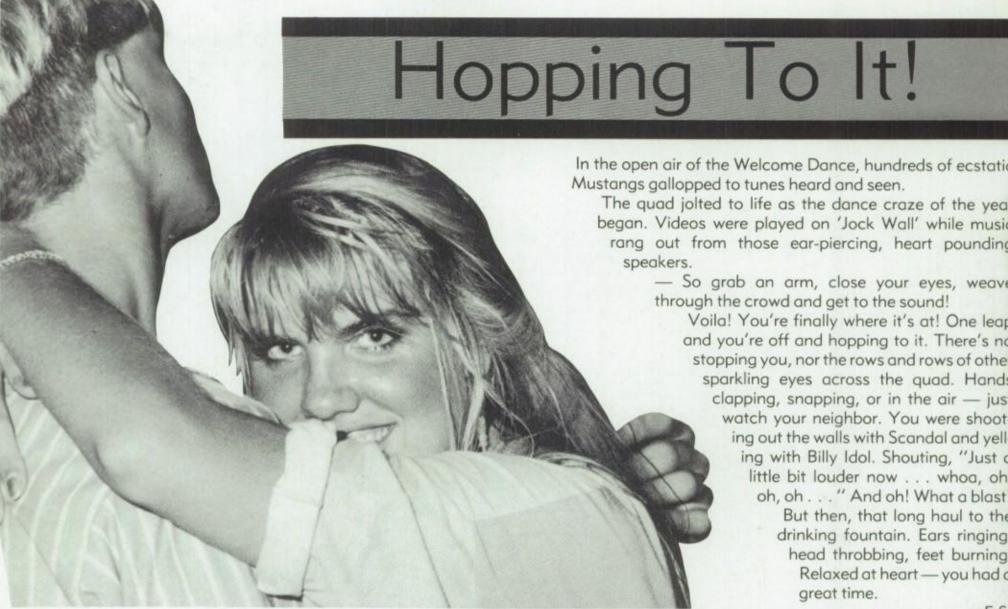

Senior Eric Dahl said, "More people should come and watch us because the team has the tannest legs of all the athletes at Homestead."

Urhammer, who also coaches JV, said he is expecting the junior varsity to do well this year also. Sophomores Paul MacQuiddy and Dave Kong are the top two players on the JV team this year.

Dahl thinks his teaching experience will help the team this year. "Bill is great because it's easy to relate to him. He puts himself on the same level as us, not above us," he said.

Is It Worth It?

Sue took a deep breath and approached him. As soon as they made eye contact she turned quickly in the opposite direction and ran!

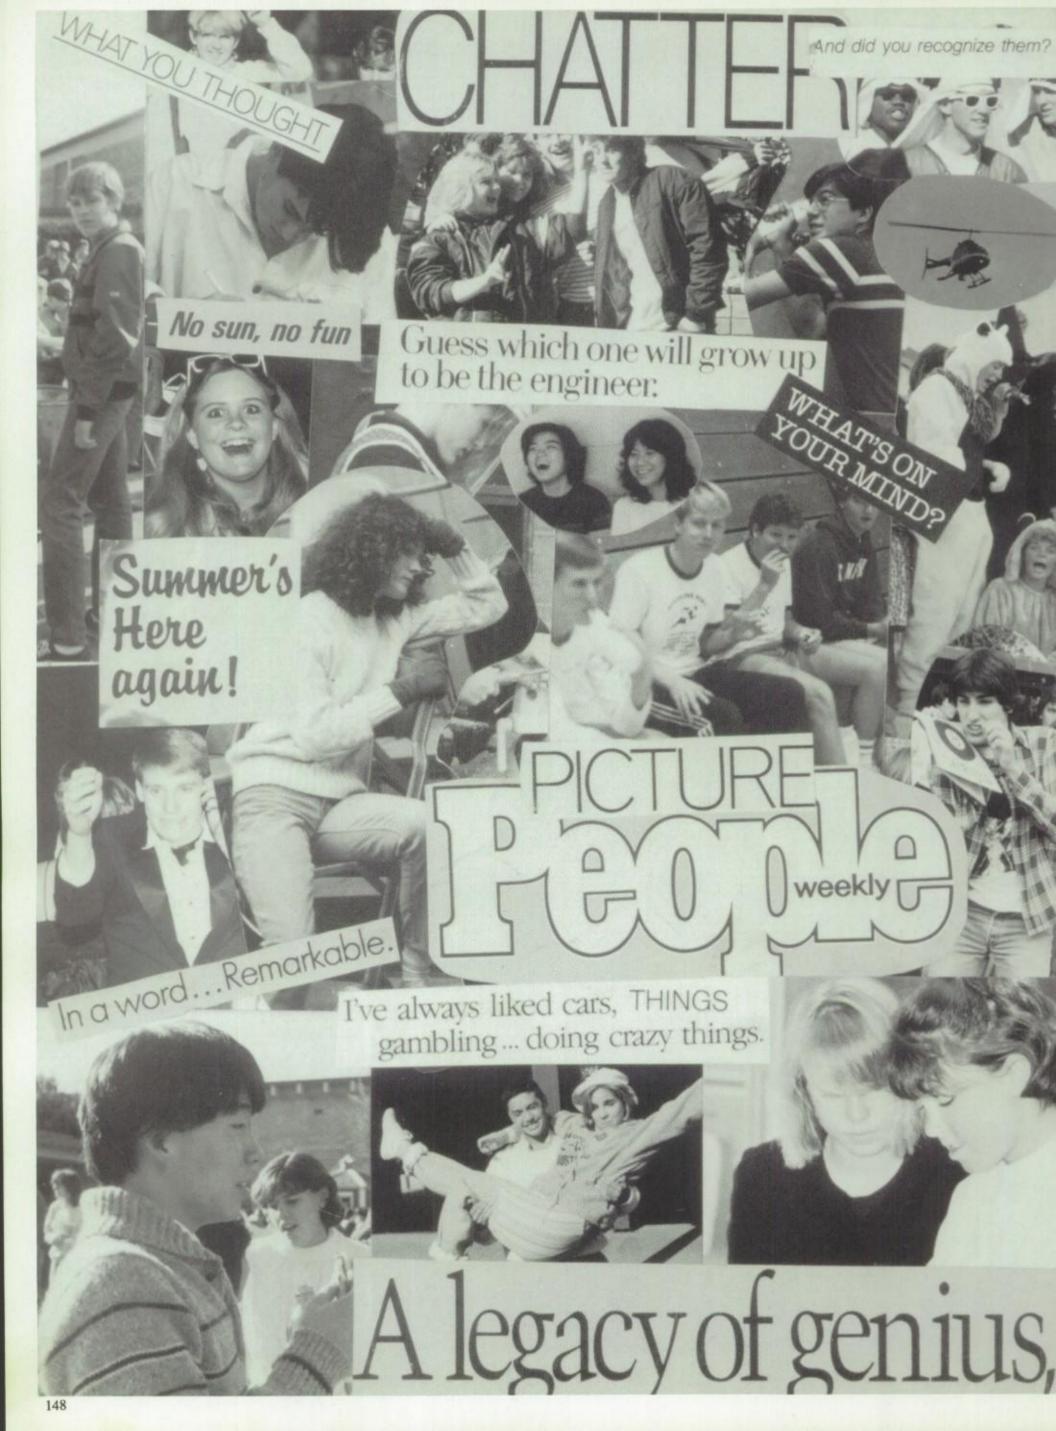

Well, after we all summoned up enough courage to do the initial asking, we thought the rest would be easy, right? But we didn't know what was in store for us. Did you know it can cost up to forty dollars to rent one costume, just one! Then dinner, another forty dollars. Pictures, the bid, and after-the-dance activities

But if we weigh the pros against the cons, we know the truth. We had the time of our lives. It's all worth it in the end.

The 1984 Sadie Hawkins Dance was sponsored by the Junior class on November 16. The theme was the Olympics, and the gym was appropriately decorated in red, white, and blue. Music was supplied by The Quake, a Bay Area radio station.

DAVID AND LISA

Lisa (Laurel Moglen) in a session with John, (Malcolm Langford) her therapist.

Chuck Pelton as Dr. Alan Swinford.

Fall Play A Success

'David and Lisa', the fall student-faculty drama was an experience in human nature. The story centers around two deeply troubled teens, David (Michael Teichman) and Lisa, (Laurel Moglen)

David is sent by his parents to a school for emotionally disturbed children because he believes he will die if touched. "He doesn't deal with life. He thinks of himself not as a person but as a mechanism," said Michael.

Lisa is a schizophrenic. "It's hard to portray Lisa," commented Laurel. It's difficult to capture all the charm and spontaneity of a three-year old in one minute and then suddenly change into Muriel, an angry and repressed 12year old."

Through the help and guidance of teachers, staff and each other, they gradually start to overcome their emotional handicaps.

The play was a lesson to us all. Work out our problems. Everybody needs to know that there is someone who cares about them.

"By watching the play you can learn a lot about people.

"David and Lisa" was presented November 1-3, 1984. Thanks to the cast and crew, it was a great production!

Do You Have What It Takes?

So, you think you want to be a cheerleader. Simply look cute in a short skirt and yell. Easy. Wrong. Being a cheerleader takes much more. It takes time, money, spirit, and most of all, commitment.

What does it take to be a "rah rah?" Well, the first step seems to be the hardest, trying out. Yelling "Go bananas," is difficult to do in a quiet room occupied only by you and a panel of judges. If the worst happens, you fall or forget the cheer, you must find the courage to smile and finish when you really just want to cry

Now you have made the squad. Homefree? No, far from it. Since tryouts are held in the spring, the new girls are able to work during the summer. They are headed for camp in the beginning of August, last summer held in Santa Cruz. They get a chance to get to know the groups, learn new cheers, polish spirit, compete with other schools and have an all-around great time.

September soon rolls around along with football games, rallies and yes, homework. Good time management is a must for a successful spirit leader. Studies, practices, games, and for many, work, must be juggled, (sleeping and eating is done in "spare time.")

Managing your time is only half the battle. Money management is needed. Four years of cheering costs roughly $1,500. You may understand now why a job is a must if your parents aren't willing to pay for everything.

If you are convinced you never want to be a cheer-leader, the good points actually do out-weigh the bad.

A veteran of four years, Barbara Gross, states a few of the many. "You get to cheer with and for your friends." Barbara goes on to say"... This year's crowds were very involved and spirited. We received personal satisfaction when realizing we helped motivate the enthusiastic crowds."

Majorettes

Majorettes are back! After a few years hiatus, Homestead once again has majorettes leading the Marching Band. Tami Matsumura and Lana Svoboda received an excellent rating at USA spirit campt, and at Homestead they have been received just as enthusiastically. You may have seen them accompanying the Marching Band at football games, twirling batons and ribbons, or leading Homestead's Homecoming parade. Tami and Lana have worked hard to create routines that are entertaining. Batons that glow in the dark or are flaming sure do get attention! Thank you Tami and Lana for bringing back a Homestead tradition.

Mascots

Working as a team, the boys an girls mascots proved to be a highlight of the spirit leaders of our school. The boys, a first for Homestead, were very enthusiastic to get into the cheering action. Stated best by Sameer Kawash, "We wanted to get in there and root legitimately" (referring to last year, they occasionally jumped on the field to spark up the crowd.) When asked whose idea it was, Brian replied, "the girls did everything, convicing, "tryouts" and uniforms; we showed up." Next year the boys shall return, Brian and two new ones to be chosen by the "vets" Mascots.

Hall Of Fame

"Being in high school is being cool," said Jim Baughman, one of the five Homestead graduates honored at the Second Annual Hall of Fame Awards. "And," he continued, "it's taking the time to get everything out of education to choose to be the best at what you want to do."

The purpose of the awards was to recognize former students whom have become very successful on their chosen fields.

Those also honored were civil engineer John Vickerman, from the class of '65; video tape distributor Doug Witkins, class of '73; Steve Wilson, class of '66; and Reed Sparks from the class of '68.

"The more you give up, the more you get back," said Wilson, a former disc jockey, now a lawyer. And by giving up some time, the honorees got something back through the whistling and cheering atop the gym bleachers.

"The things that help most are the not so obvious things," added Wilson.

Vickerman got the crowd going by commenting, "You're miles above Fremont." Whatever that meant.

Noting the student enthusiasm, Witkins, said, "High school is a forum to test everything. There you get immediate approval or disapproval."

Modeling his life after what he learned at Homestead, Sparks said involvement is of key importance.

Baughman even talked of the excitement of buying an elevator pass as a freshman, when he too walked the halls searching for knowledge and "the high school experience."

Ending the ceremony was Hall of Fame Chairperson John Plungy, who said: "You all carry a pride instilled here at Homestead that will remain with you the rest of your lives."

PIZZA!!!!

"One extra large sausage, pepperoni, pineapple with tons of onions and mushrooms. Oh, not too much cheese, I'm on a DIET. Do you have any diet Coke?"

What a mob Henri B's Pizza sees when our infamous school holds a pizza night! A group of friends would go together, (no body would dare go to pizza night without making absolutely sure someone you knew would be there!), order together, eat together, and inevitably do something to talk-about-the-next-day, together. Try to buy or sneak in "beverages", or eat as much pizza as you can without paying.

RISING STARS

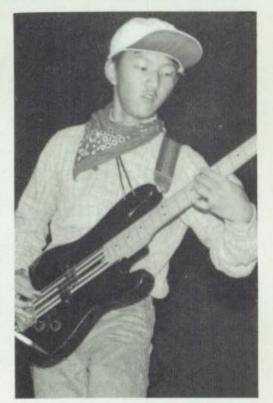

So what if it wasn't as big as the Jackson's Victory Tour. To us at Homestead, The 1st Annual Garage Band Night was the event of the year.

The show was studded with six rising bands, The curtain rose on Friday, October 19, unveiling the magic of lights and sound with the band Horizon. Next on came the powerful heavy metal group Violence and their die-hard fans screaming for more. 7A62, a new band from the campuses of Homestead and St. Francis, got the audience moving; while Rusty and the Bandits produced some great ol' knee-slappin'-tunes. Equinox, an old, fathful band of Homestead's, finished up the evening with an impressive display of talent. First place went to The Spatulas, with their strange and original songs. The front of the auditorium turned into a dance floor and the Spatulas fans went wild.

FRIENDS FROM

Foreign exchange students come from miles around to spend a year in America. Not only do they learn a new language, but they broaden their horizons, and open their perspectives. They learn and experience a whole new style of living, and they encounter many new intriguing people.

For them it is a year away from their family friends, and country, yet so much more is of fered to them. "Independence is great," said Inyaki Romanos from Spain. A new outlook or the world, is just another. One can read as many books as he or she wants, but nothing matches up to this one year abroad.

The hardest part for these exchange students is adapting to their new environment. They will find themselves adapting or adjusting at one time or another. Although, sometimes we Americans can help them adjust and meet them half way. This is beneficial to both parties, for it helps us both see things from a different point of view.

As far as adapting goes, school is one of the hardes challenges for exchange students to conquer. This is where their second language is most beneficial.

All of the exchange students classify the American schools in one word, easy. Alana Martinez (Venezu ela) feels that there is not enough emphasis on aca demics, and too much on sports. Although, she doe admit that there are many more opportunities here, as fa Jacques Berset (Switzerland) classifys the schools here as boring He says there is no real incentive to work. This holds true for mos exchange students.

The biggest difference in American schools is that the kids move and the teachers stay, this allows one to meet many more kids.

An exchange student's social life is also quite important, for it give

Alana Martinez Barquisimeto, Venerzuala

the student someone with whom they can relate to while they are here all alone. Inyaki Romanos seems to think that the people here are friendly and warm. He has many friends that he will miss when he returns home.

Caroline Wentworth (Norway) feels people in the states are more open than in Norway. That we are.

Jacques critiques us as very direct and frank people, yet still friendly.

America, a world wide importance, is a holder of many stereotypes in the minds of exchange students. For the most part they all describe the U.S. as big. Big. Big cars, big people, and big towns. Big everything.

Jacques said that he was astounded at how big the school was first day of class. It seemed so big and structured that it gave him a cold feeling. Despite that, he did adjust to it in time.

Anders Jakobsen (Denmark) was bothered that the cities were so big, for he has never seen his neighbors, not once.

Caroline said that she always thought Americans were big fat people, who always drive everywhere and never walked. This held partly true.

Another common stereotype is the "California surf guy with a Coke in his hand" as stated by Alana.

When people think of America, or California for that matter, they think of Hollywood movie stars, and the fast expensive life.

All the exchange students miss the food from their respective countries, sometimes more than their parents or friends. Some of their facial expressions describe their longing for a home cooked meal.

Especially Caroline's expression. It revealed her attitude better than any words. The first thing she said after a sigh was that she longs for fresh bread. The bread here is so commercial. One night she got some fresh bread and goat cheese from Norway and had a feast.

Anders said that he was sick and tired of all of the fried food and would kill for a home cooked meal.

All exchange students said, "Yes, I would come back to see my family and friends."

All feel that they have benefitted from this year abroad with a positive attitude about themselves, as a result their new friends, America and Homestead.

PEGASUS STAFF

A NOTE ...

On looking back in retrospect at the everlasting ten months which has preceded the emergence of this baby into the scrutinizing hands of surrounding peers, it is apparent to me that many thanks are in order.

My one goal and desire for the 1984-85 Pegasus was to show the unification of all students and staff here at Homestead High. Too many times high school yearbooks are "quaddie" books chockfull of everyone's favorite athelete or beauty queen. Well, not this year. Homestead has a star in every student, and this year we have done our best to acknowledge as many stars as we were able.

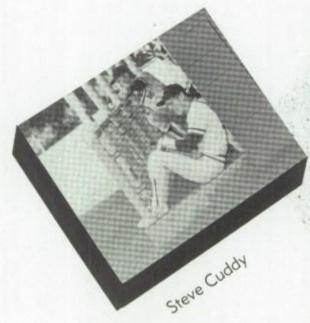

We all gather together to form this institution we call "home" 1056 hours a year.

The theme of this years' Pegasus, "We the People", reflects what we all know Homestead is about. This year's staff has tried their hardest to follow through on this idea; the goal was not to single anyone out, but to show each of Homestead's aspects as they are a melting pot of individuals.

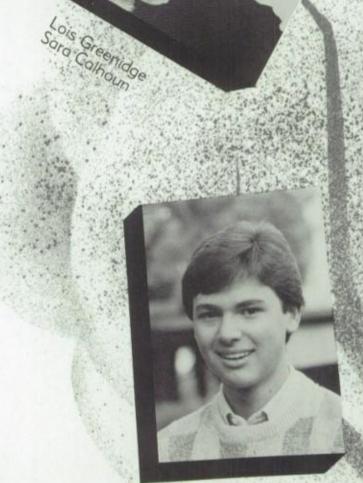

Scads of Saturdays and late hours were spent on simple menial tasks such as typing and fitting copy, and without the help of a special few on staff, those small extras could never have been accomplished. An extra thank you to Lois Greenidge and Sara Calhoun for their unrelenting support, and trips to Farrell's and Henri B's. And to Rich Knapp, a thank you for a shoulder to cry on, a room to escape to, and may Mr. Winchell's will you his estate for keeping him in business.

theEpitaph

The Epitaph is a student run, student-produced newspaper, published 12 times throughout the year.

The purpose of the paper is to inform the student body of pertinent and newsworthy information, to interpret and explain happenings on campus through investigative reporting, and to voice informed opinions on topics of student concern.

Ads sold to local businesses by an Epitaph ad manager supply the funds needed to finance the paper, along with money appropriated by the ASB.

The staff is a group of 27 students selected by the advisor, Nick Ferentinos on a basis of teacher recommendations, grade point average, and writing ability. Students enroll in a Journalism 1 course for one year where they learn the specifics of journalistic writing, and do not actually write for the Epitaph until their second year in journalism.

Different from any other type of class, staff members work mostly outside the class room and more than just during class time hours. Every three weeks during (cont'd)

Epitaph members become friends both inside and outside of the journalism room. Long hours and hard work done together form the foundations of close friendships.

Highlights and favorite comments this year include: parties at Dad George's, pictures of Rhonda and Prince posters. Common expressions were: "Yahoo," 'We knocked their socks off," and "We rule the world."

On a more serious note, the staff is devoted to honest reporting and a high quality of writing.

For the last four years the Epitaph has been recognized on a national level; including last year's Pacemaker award marking the Epitaph one of the top five in the nation. Nick says it best —

"We have a responsibility to maintain a reputation of excellence".

This years activities included, flowergrams, ornaments for children at Stanford Hospital, serving pies to teachers in appreaciation and bringing the elderly to enjoy the school play.

For the students who excel in the French language, the Homestead French Honor Society exsists. They must keep a consistant grade point average set by a National standard. With Madame Goff for an advisor, the society has established as exceptional club.

Le gusta la Espanol? Ven-ga a la club Espanol!!

The Spanish Club is a club designed to further the cultural knowledge of it's members. Spanish students belonging participate incultural diners and take part in the annual district-wide International Language Fair.

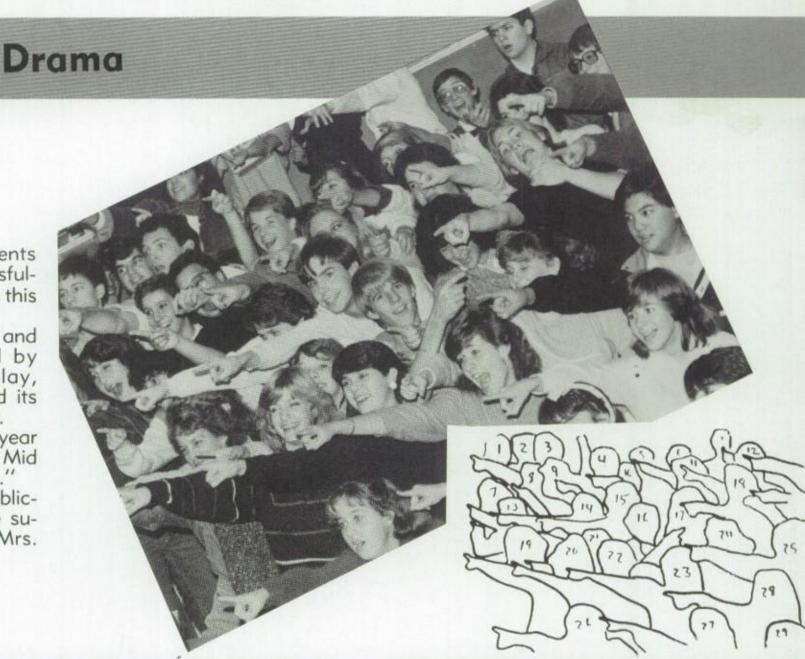

Combining their talents the Drama Club successfully organized three plays this year.

The fall play, "David and Lisa," was enjoyed by many. The Spring play, "Hello Dolly," followed its footsteps of excellence.

Closing the school year was Shakespeare's "A Mid Summer Nights Dream."

The productions, publicity to backdrops, were supervised by advisor Mrs. Clarke.

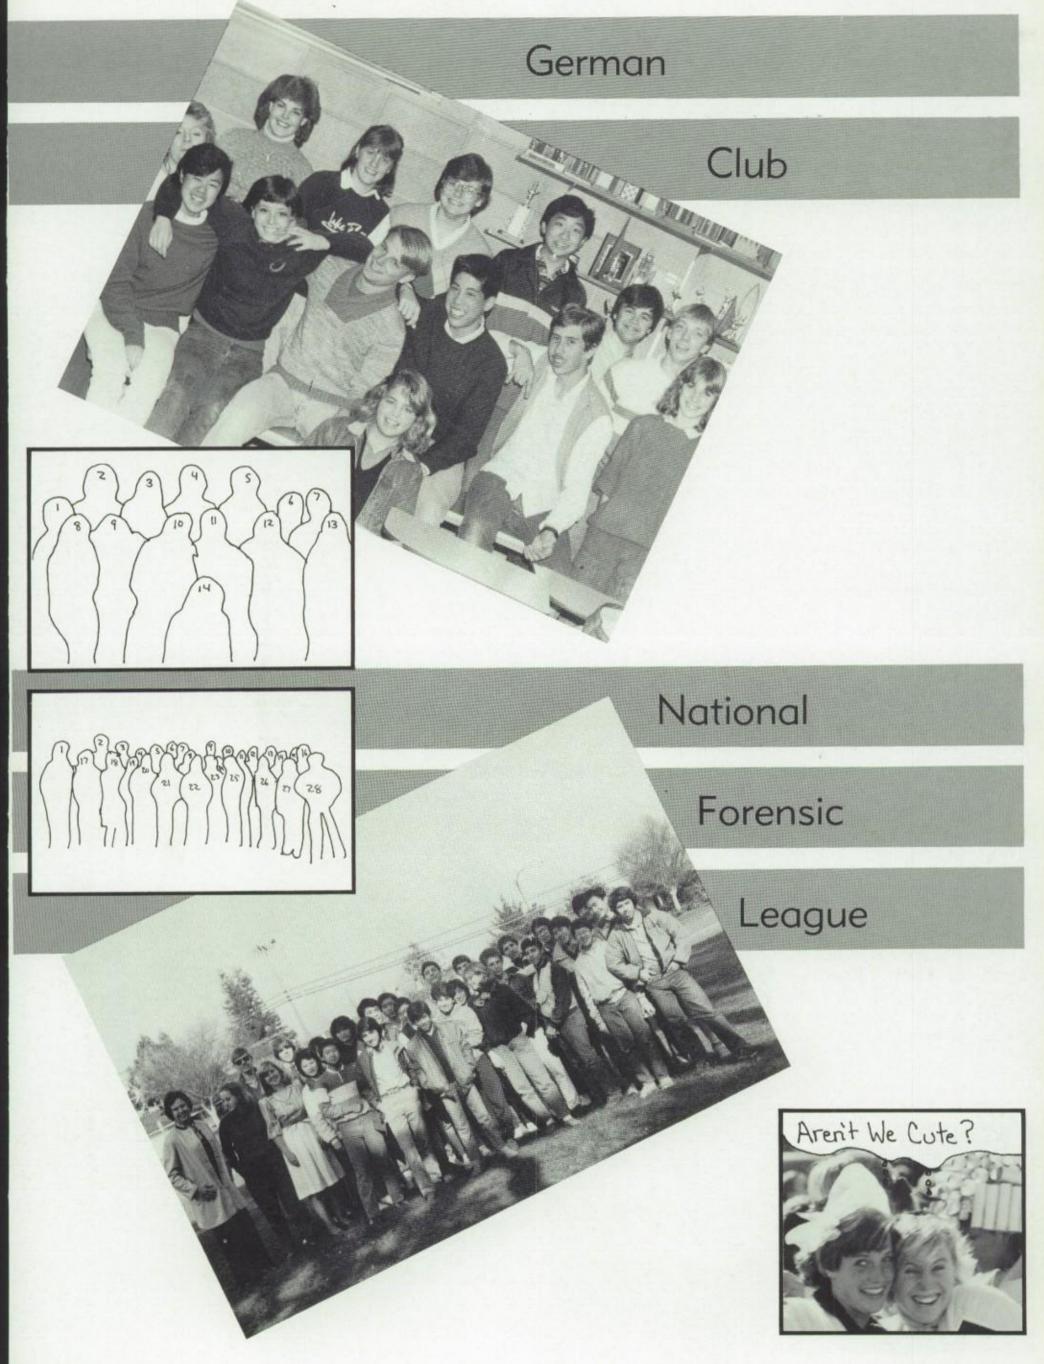

California Scholarship Federation, one of the few achedemic clubs in Homestead, honors the scholastically motivated students.

The club was involved in the organization of two blood drives through out the year. Another of the events C.S.F. contributed to our school was the Balloon-Gram Day.

"The Movie Club? Well, what do you guys actually do?"

Organizers of this populated yet enigmatic club, namely President Scott Toussaint, directors Levi Phillips and Henry Perezalonso, and account manager Karen Conner, hear this question often.

"No," they would answer, "we don't watch movies, we make them. Current projects include the short subject films "Saturday School: A Living Hell", "Hall and Oates: Friends or Foes", and "Stupid Things To Get Arrested For"."

The Movie Club, with 100 members, sponsored the Hootenany as their service project.

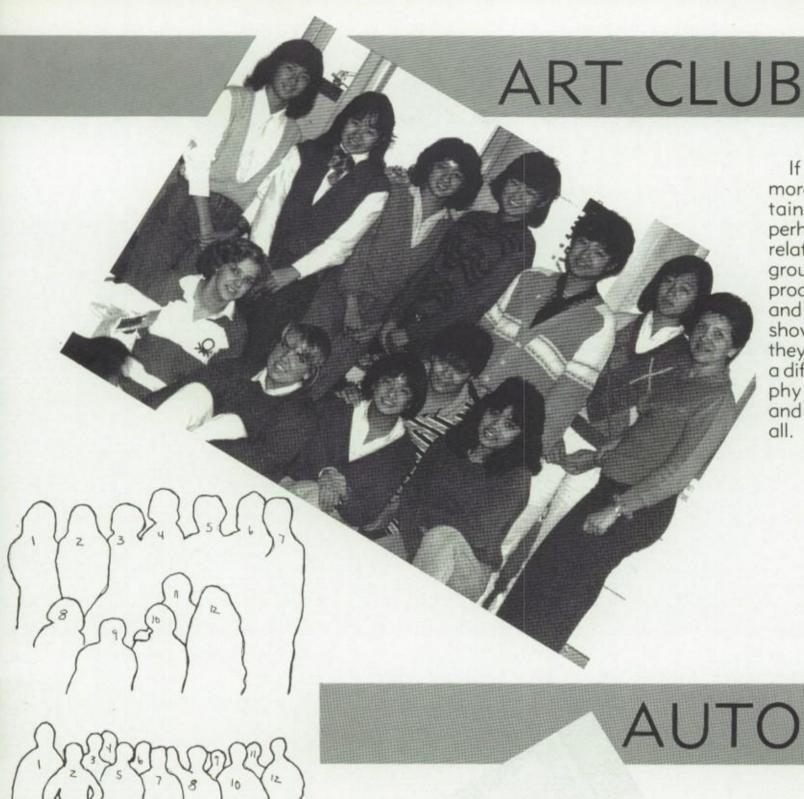

R.P.G.

Who says school can't be fun and games? These people sure would disagree. They get together to play adventure and fantasy board games to match wits. The games, such as Dungeons and Dragons, are complicated and require strategy. The competition that goes along with the games is very intense and to be taken seriously.

If doodling to you means more than a form of entertainment during lectures, perhaps you will be able to relate to the art club. This group of girls put on a very productive holiday art show and sale. Also an Easter art show and sale. Every month they decorate or quad with a different display in our trophy case. Their creativity and talent was enjoyed by

AUTO CLUB

The Street Kings. A gang? Perhaps, but at Homestead they are a legiti-mate group of car buffs. According to one member they enjoy cruising, talking about who did what to their engine and comparing notes on zero to seventy. Some of the members entered their cars in The Car National in Sacramento.

Future Business Leaders of America is a national organization recognized all over the World. The club gives students extra 'polish' on business skills that comes from off campus. Members compete with other students throughout the state, in categories like typing, interviewing and debate. On campus this club organizes December holiday Messages that are delivered with a candy cane.

This year's publication included short stories and poems that were mostly written by Mr. Pereiera's Creative writing class.

Skiing down the stairs of C building to get to B building in five whole minutes, meeting the eyes of hundreds and then changing directions ten times to talk with passers-by, we all are part of our own fast-moving community. We made the valley know we were here by releasing green balloons and hot air at the treasured and few rallies. Dicipating at the school day's end, we showed off our Mustang style and created traffic jams.

Think for a moment of all the hours you spent at school watching the clock, then think of the two to three minutes it took you to try to tell people how great it really was while writing in the corner of page 192 in the yearbook. You got to know a family, this large group of people sharing the range. For we all live on the Homestead, and we are its people.

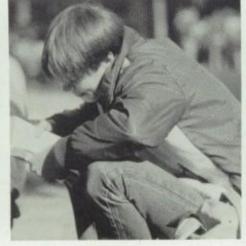

And what are you going to be when you grow up, little Bobby; little Becky?

"A big time teenager!" They proclaimed together.

Well guess what? Bobby and Becky are all grown up now, with minds overflowing with dreams, goals and ideas.

Education takes the part of molding these visions into reality, a way of giving us an opportunity to test-drive new frontiers, and then make decisions.

"So what's the plan?" A vision scopes in, and you focus on it.

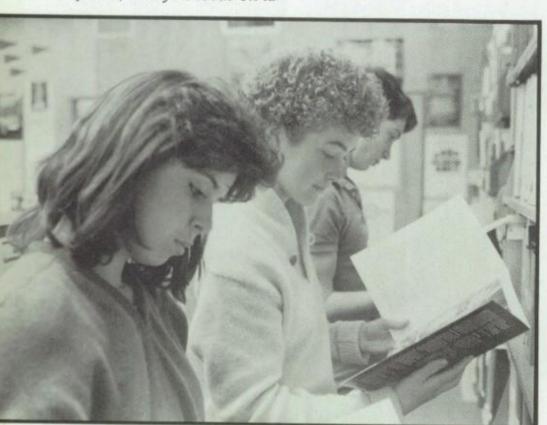

Sights are set high and the effort becomes strong.

Students are finding out what interests them, what they would benefit from and excell at.

College and career choices become complex, far more complex than the plan for Friday night.

Then it becomes time to apply for that once "dream on" college and that "Wow! Wouldn't that be great" career, knowing that it's in reach.

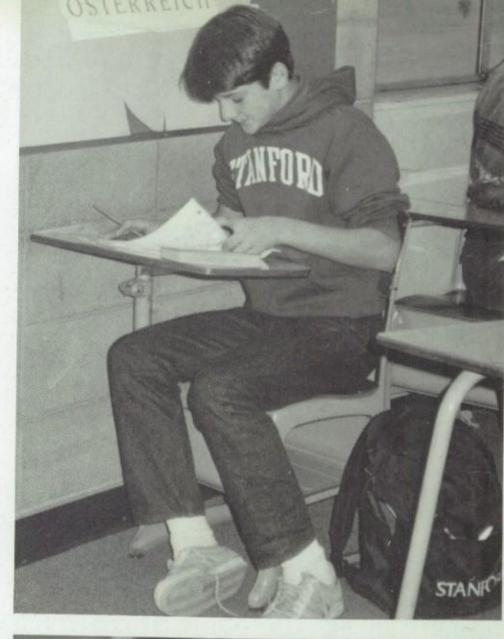

Then still, the visions live on.

"Ich liebe Stanford!" Knowing that reality starts with a vision, freshman Steve Daetz begins planning by pursuing a foreign language.

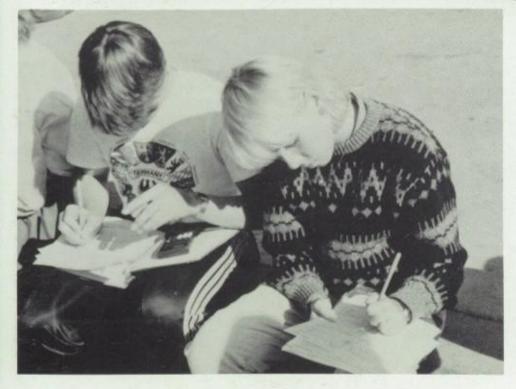

Knowing that the "future" isn't too far off, sophomores Georgette Scott and Kristi Collier make use of the career center.

Probing into the depths of "Dinner!", future brain surgeon Mike Christie performs a cerebral bisection.

Alot of hassle for a little tassle," you may say. Even so, that tassle on graduation day holds with it that great high school experience. The gained wisdom, the clear intellect, the friendship—all the benefits there for the taking.

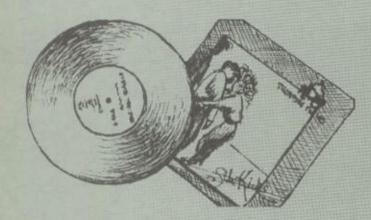

Standards and requirements are raised; academics plays a large role now. Oh, you say, "Academics is something Miss Kingsby talks about twice a year during History class. Yee fun!" True, yet the challenges were met and the demanding classes were taken.

Flashback. 3:30 p.m. "Study? No problem." 11:30 p.m. Reality hits. "Eeek! I juz gotta ace that Macbeth exam or Mr. Mailman will knock on my door with some real toil-n-trouble."

Then, that monotonous task of joining every "decent" club on campus, getting involved, digging into the extracurricular and getting up early on weekends to take the PSATs and achievement tests

Just that split-second toss of a hat, and the enlightening rewards become well worth the effort. The challenges are worthwhile.

Friday nights. Time to hit the bleachers, watch the action take place, and become part of it all.

The night games were a bright get together for many Mustangs. It was a community craze; a time to support the hard playing teams.

It seemed like two games were being played; the one on the field and the one on the stands.

"Lean to the left — 'gotcha that time, eh bud?' — Lean to the right — 'Hi! What's your name?" Drop your popcorn. "Fight! Fight! Fight!"

It was a time to meet people, mingle, and maybe throw a pompom or two at red-hat-or-shirtlaw disobeyers.

The band, drill team, and spirit leaders gave thrilling enthusiasm to the crowd.

Blaring trumpets, ringing cymbals, and drum rolls enriched the air. And then there was the faithful kazoo club, playing tunes all their own.

The fever will always be kept alive while the old saying prevails. It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game that counts.

You got to want it, to win it, and sophomores Kelly Diesner and Cindy Chamberlain want it more.

Beating on drums and clowning around, granny-costumed enthusiasts continued the Fregger and Fisher tradition.

Eight feet tall and leading them all, junior Nancy Schweifler carefully balances herself on the shoulders of senior Sameer Kawash.

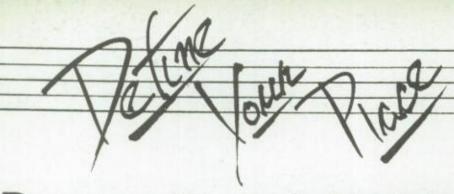

The last minutes of the last game — there was hugging and crying, yet for a short moment seniors Molly Pugh and Barbara Gross resort to this fiendish plot against buddy cheerleader Shana McLean. "Et tu Barbara?"

Silence. Just a moment to play back every pass and every block. Helmet off and mind on. Senior Jim Wilcox meditates as the coach's words penetrate.

Does a square peg fit into a round hole?

Is the band wagon too full for another passenger to jump on?

Is uniqueness more important than fitting into the puzzle?

Where exactly do you belong? Whether you prefer living amongst the mist under a fluorescent sun, blending into the crowd, or being uniquely yourself, your position is identifiable and categorizable.

If you spent hours memorizing words like 'boisterous' while being 'encompassed' in a room, or if you wasted hours at "study" sessions where you meant to complete that extra-credit crossword puzzle but instead sat back with the group and watched MTV and passed the Doritos, there are others just like you. However, if you still don't see where you fit, whether it's as a square peg, or a snowflake with its own design, you can Define your Place in Society.

"Another test?"

outfits for school?

- a. I just match the animals.
- Mom lays it out the night before.
- Whatever happens to be on the cover of G.Q. or Vogue.
- Why do you wear a Mickey T-shirt?
 - a. He's my favorite cartoon character.
 - It is a souvenir from Disneyland.
 - c. Is that with or without sleeves? Well?
- 8. When do you take naps?
 - Every day at 3:30 p.m. after milk and cookies.
 - b. I don't.
 - In class or during graduation requirements or assemblies in the auditorium.
- 9. How much do you read?
 - a. A volume of my Britannica a night.
 - 50 pages a week including the Frosted Flakes side panel.
 - c. Wait, where is the dictionary . . . Oh!

What? Me read? Come on.

- 10. Where do you go on a weekend night?
 - Movie with mom. Maybe PG-13!
 - To the game and a party.
 - c. All I remember is a big orange bridge and a lot of lights. I think it was San Fransicso? But don't quote me.
- 11. What is your favorite evening activity?
 - Baking cookies with extra chocolate chips then finishing my hook rug.
 - Rent Purple Rain for VCR and watch with the gang.
 - I don't remember exactly, but I had fun doing it.
- 12. Where do you go to the bathroom at 8:30 p.m. on a Friday night?
 - At home during Beatrice commercials.
 - b. AmPm
 - Somewhere.
 Anywhere.

a. Square Peg: Life has no zest. The academic paradise is unbalanced and becomes boring. A Friday night out is spent in the public library counting all the books dropped in the book return slot.

Suggestions: Look around, see the brand new day and jump on the band wagon.

b. Wagon Rider: It's the same old thing weekend after weekend. The Town Center has lost its intrigue now that you can find all the shops without getting lost and the newest movie has an (R) after it Suggestions: Sometimes you just have to say, "What the heck." Get a hair cut how you want it. Wear clothes that express yourself. Become an individual with your own unique character.

c. Snowflake: The spice is in everything. Every day is a new experience with excitement and color. You are confident in the things you do.

Suggestions: Keep smiling. Don't let the weather change or you may become ice, which has a very regular structure (And you don't want that).

[&]quot;By now you should know AmPm is a past, let's find some place else." - Libby Reed

Self expression is an art just like anything else. You must work to refine it, to allow it to come out of no where, simply to let someone know you care, or if your chemistry paper "really did" get eaten by the dog, and you're fuming because no one believes you — let them know.

You are the most important person in your life — and although that may sound like a Snipets commercial, it's amazing the amount of truth it holds.

Please yourself; let out your feelings. It's really too bad those kids in your chemistry class don't care enough to understand when you're upset, but you don't need them. You need you. — T.P.S.

When you get what you want in your struggle for self, and the world makes you king for a day, just go to a mirror and look at yourself, and see what that man as to say. For it isn't your mother or daughter or wife, whose judgement upon you must pass. The fellow whose verdict counts most in your life, is the one staring back in the glass.

"Trendy is all those glow colors and big dangly earrings freshman wear and bi-level hair cuts."

Follow me, you stereo jungle child," into the melodies of the '80s.

This year the spice was in variety. New sounds hit the airways and filled the record stores from A to Z.

For many, music is life. Heads bouncing between shoulders, they were cruising B building the long way — that is, leap forward, leap back, do it again. And two wires vanished down through the multicolored concert T-shirt to that trusty tune box.

People were joining the federation with General Public, after the etching of "All The Rage." And they were loving life with Berlin.

Bruce Springsteen came under the lights in the bay with "Born In The U.S.A."

The Jacksons were touring and Prince & The Revolution peered over the top for a while when "Purple Rain" became a craze.

David Bowie had the Blue Jean blues.

The Kinks went 'round again with "Word of Mouth".

Patty Smyth of Scandal was featured in the heartbeat of the album "Warrior".

People embraced the oasis of music by Pat Benatar, when she put out "Tropico", her sixth album.

U2 said they'll be there, and many met "The Unforgettable Fire" head-on.

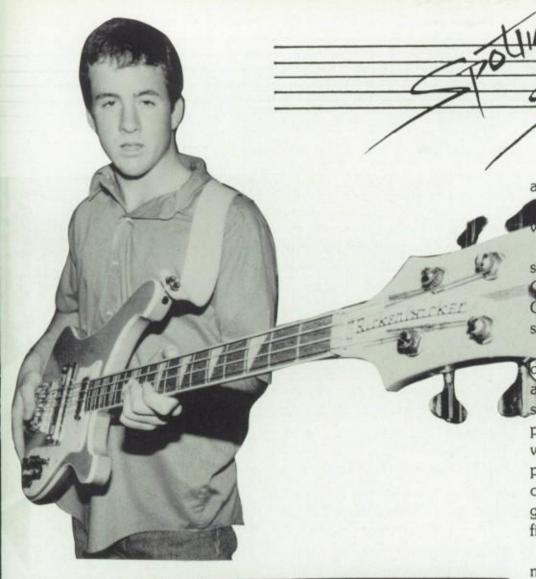

The list will never end. Tunes enriched the year, and everyone had their own personal favorites.

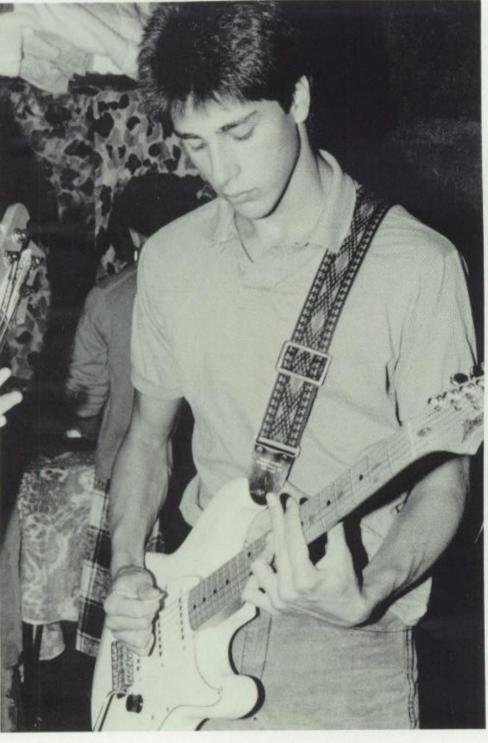

As the music video craze was dying down, students scoured import sections to find that album only they had heard of, just to find something different and stay away from the commercialized.

The collection could never be complete, music was being experimented with, and we were in the middle having a good old time.

Livening the lives of all, music — that deep expression of emotion — entertains, relaxes and holds a profound effect on the youthful spirit.

Music makes the world go 'round.

Winners of the first-ever garage band competition, the Spats, soon became a household

Forming the band as a oneshe effort in 1983, junior Derek Cox and sophomore Mark Christman played mainly for school.

After a short lapse, they decided to continue and get serious a out playing. Then Mark's seler, Beth Christman, started playing the keyboards with them when those piano lessons started paying off. New members, juniors Kevin Seidel and electric guitarist Scott Toppel, added the final touches.

Deciding on a name, Kevin mentioned the "Spatulas," a title he once gave to his soccer team, and the band's reaction was that it would be a perfect name.

The Spatulas were a unique band who said they liked playing "different stuff." Their synthesizer music reproduced bell sounds and thrilling melodies, keeping rhythm with the deep bass and crashing cymbals.

Derek's distinct vocals amplified the characteristically humorous lyrics.

"Your hair is bleached with black on top. If you don't get out I'll call the cops."

Every weekend they worked on songs for the contest. They were stunned when they won, yelling and stomping on the stage. Derek, who wore a bike helmet with plastic spatulas protruding off the sides, said it was their stage enthusiasm and interaction with the audience that did it.

As with many blossoming garage bands, members come and go. The Spatulas had their era, and even if they do vanish before the summer, keep in mind these lyrics: "Forced Family Fun is taking its toll. They're dropping our weekends into a hole. Kids, this is for your benefit. So close your mouth and don't have a fit."

Strumming on the six-string, junior Scott Toppel practices off and on with the band.

On Sheriff's hood, left to right, are drummer Kevin Seidel, keyboardists Derek Cox and freshman Beth Christman, and bass guitarist Mark Christman.

ASB Food Drive

By Meg Everett

Hunger is everywhere today, even in our own community.

This year students and faculty did something about the problem by donating cans and money to the ASB Food Drive.

The drive netted 3400 cans and $1000.

The food was donated to the Salvation Army and Santa Clara county Food Bank. The money was given to the Red Cross for distribution in Ethiopia.

ASB president Mike Spiegel attributed the food drive's success to increased news coverage. "Hunger has been a lot more in the news lately. You see it on TV every night."

Winning the class competition for the most cans and money donated was Steve Headley's; feasting on Togo's sandwiches.

The Christmas toy project continued for the third year in a row when woodshop classes produced steamrollers for the needy.

Woodshop teacher Jake Cagle and all his students worked for three weeks to put out 150 toys.

According to Cagle, every student participated in the construction of the parts and worked on the assembly line mass production.

The steamrollers were donated to the Stanford Children's Hospital and the Police Athletic League, which then distributed the toys to needy families for children in the community.

Financed by donations from local merchants, the steamroller production was completely paid off.

Twirling 'Round

Brightening the holidays for hundreds of needy children, majorette Lana Svoboda twirled to replenish a supply of stolen toys.

Someone stole $500 worth of new toys being collected for the Holiday Basket Project. After reading of the theft Lana thought about doing a "Twirl-a-thon" to help replace the stolen goods. She pursued this and started twirling batons at the Sunnyvale Town Center where she received contributions for the cause. She also spread the word around Homestead and the community.

With all items restored by donations of money, toys, food and clothing she said, "I'm glad now that the kids have all the toys back."

"I'd like to start to make this (Twirl-a-thon) a tradition every year, because then the kids will have more toys and if they have a merry Christmas, then I have a merry Christmas."

"So Christopher, have you been good this year?" Santa questions junior Chris Schneider, assistant in charge of publicity.

Close-up On People

At Lunch-time

It's

12:30 and your stomach screaming "Feed me!" But when to eat and with whom? Well, for starters you could eat in the quad like everyone else, right? There's always the cafeteria, where you can make your own salad or sandwich, and oh, of course, a cheeseburger lunch. Or maybe if you don't wish to spend your money there you might run down to 7-11 or Mc-

Donalds; or if you have a car any one of the fast-food joints will do. Then there are those of us who don't wish to spend any money, mom has packed a lunch. You will find these people all over campus. Some will simply venture home to eat. But what if after all that waiting your appetite is gone? You can catch up on some studying in the library. Or maybe you don't wish to enrich and develop your brain, but your body. Many play basketball and football at lunch. But wherever you choose to go in that forty minutes one thing's for sure, you're doing what you want to do, with whom you want to be, and where you want to go. It's the kind of freedom > we all need.

When I went to HHS.

Dress codes, closed campus, long hair and acid rock music were the signs of the times. The joke on the first day of school was how many elevator tickets were sold to unsuspecting freshmen—and who the heck was Steven Jobs? Most teachers were just beginning their careers, strikes were unheard of, and Prop. 13 was several years away.

Our nation was on the upswing. Nixon was president and busy bringing our men home from Vietnam, while Reagan, our future president, as govenor.

Yes, some things were different, but it's funny how most things have stayed the same. I see favorite teachers still going strong, and as for dress, anything goes! But most important, the pride that still remains at Homestead, whether you graduated in 1972 or 1985.

Caren Bailey (1969-1972)

A Teacher's Eye-View

"Acta Non Verba" — The slogan of HHS — Action Not Words. This is a contradiction in terms for a secondary school, particularly in my discipline and, it is suspected, in over half of this school. For it is words: written and spoken; formal and informal; impersonal and privately personal that runs any school. And that, too, is a contradiction, a Catch-22 that is the strength and weakness of this school.

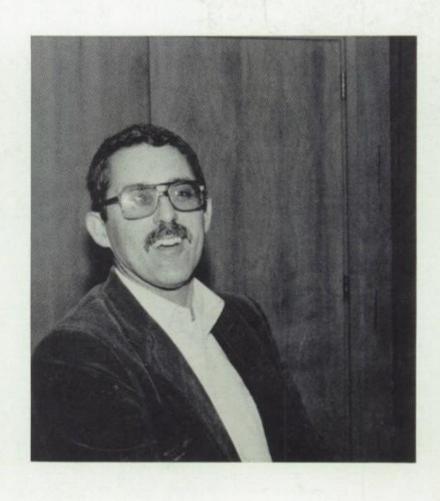

"Every student is important; Every student counts," is the old FUHSD motto in their 50th year. And so it was, is, and should continue to be. For without the students of HHS where would any of us be?

Certainly, it is the students that keep me here and keep me coming back after two sabbatical leaves, one teacher exchange program and a leave of absence.

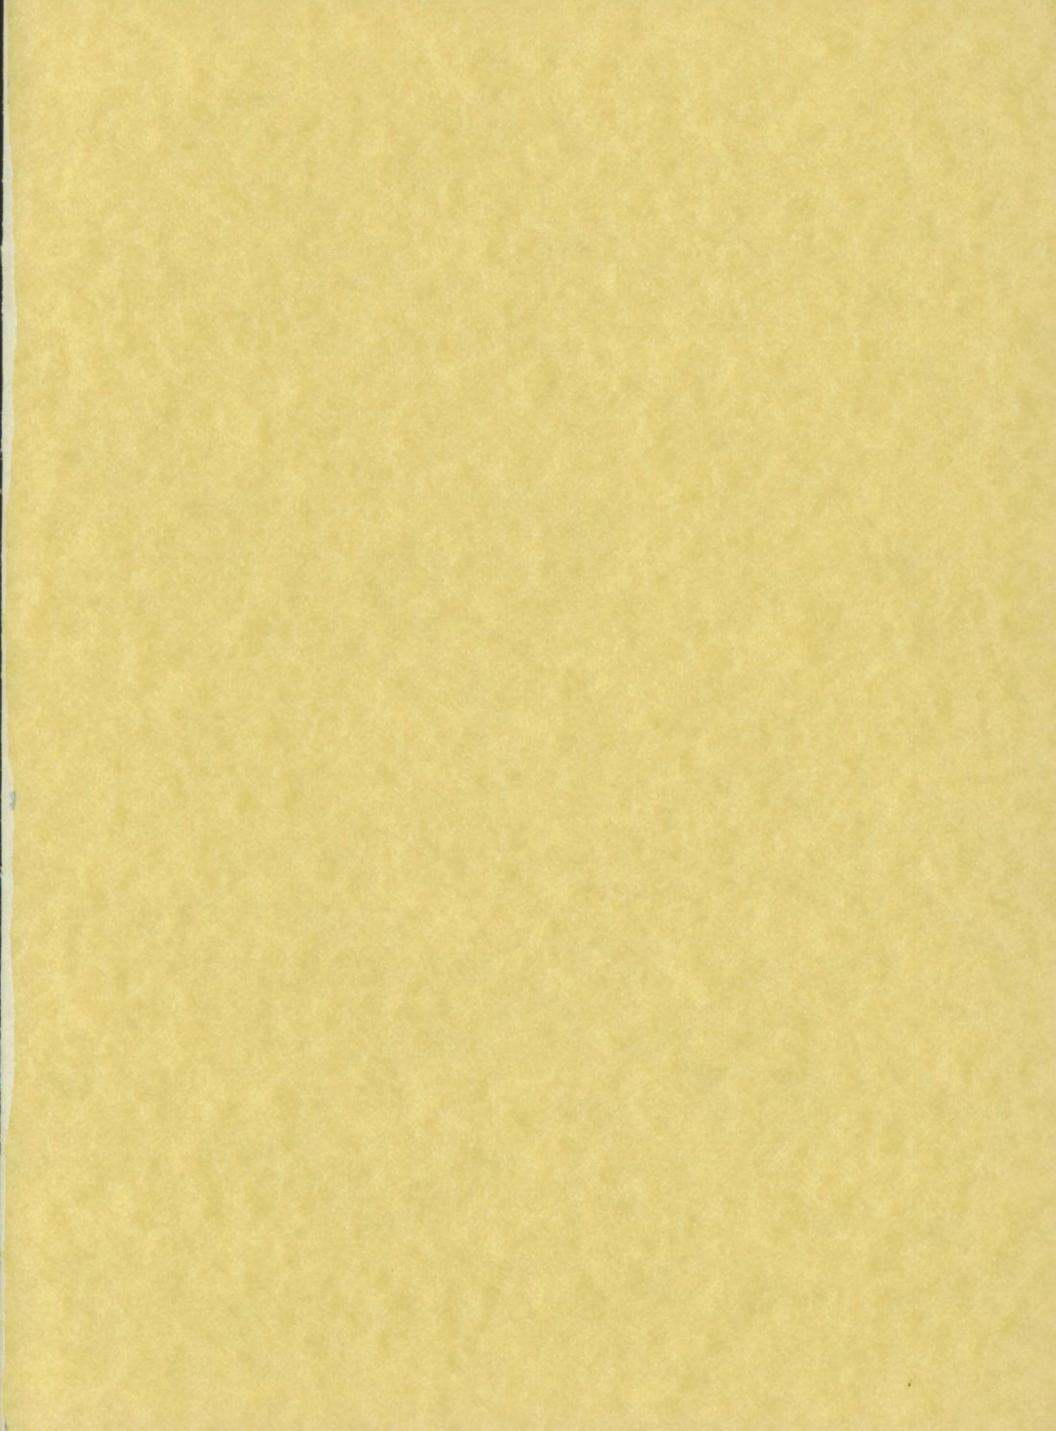

I love Homestead students. I have given them eighteen years of my life and much of my intellectual and personal energies. In turn it is the mustang students who have shared so much of their personal lives with me.

I meet the young mother who I taught with her two year old son in the market. I share the joy with an ex-student and young friend who has just become a fellow English teacher. I revel in my own sons' successes as foreign exchange students. I watch you all grow and mature. I thank you all as I continue to give of myself on a daily basis.
